RALPH McGILL

After Saud, The Schools!

After Ibn Saud and a decision on the Middle East resolution with which the Senate will worry for a time, the President will come forward with his nationally vital educational plans.

The number of school and college students was 17 million in 1900.

In 1955 it was 41 million.

By 1970, which is not very far ahead, the total is expected to be 54 million.

We, the states and local boards of the United States, will spend 40 billions of dollars on school plants in the next 10 years.

We will still be woefully short of space.

The truth is that every school principal and college president is looking fearfully ahead at a steadily approaching human avalanche.

There are still those occasional legislators, congressmen, councilmen, clergymen and editors who like to talk of the days when they walked five miles to school and carried a tin lunch bucket. Contents of the legendary lunch bucket vary. The Southerner likely will speak nostalgically of cornbread and syrup; the Easterner of buttered bread sandwiches. These persons enjoy telling these stories and asking why education today needs so much. None of these is living today without a bathroom, electric lights or modern conveniences. But they somehow seem to suggest education should have remained in a primitive tin-bucket state.

More Students

It is not merely that we have many more millions of students in our time. It also is that we live in a time of complex and awesome technology. More education is required by today's high school and college graduate than was necessary in the "old days."

There already is such a shortage of plants and teachers that the private colleges are taking only those students they want. They can pick and choose. And they do. The result is that because they have a student body chosen from the top 10 per cent of the graduating classes they offer a better educational "climate" than do those institutions which just take every high school graduate. In the years ahead it is going to become more and more difficult to "get into" college.

The plain and sober facts are the federal government cannot longer fail to aid education. It has been participating in that field for some time. In 1947 alone, for example, the United States spent roughly three and one-half billions on the GI students. That was the peak year. We have aided the land grant colleges, the ROTC schools, the science departments doing special research tasks; and we have the school lunch plan. In the field of vocational education we have a large and successful aid program in both agriculture and trades.

GI Bill

Almost 10 million young men and women took advantage of the GI bill for education. The overall results were good. The graduates have strengthened the nation's resources in trained human skill and talent.

It is to be hoped the educational aid bill can be adopted without any major battle over the segregation issue. Educators in the Southern states, where most of the resistance now seems to lie, are urging their congressional delegations not to defeat the aid bill. It still will be possible for any state which does not wish to accept the aid, so to do. Educational leaders feel the federal aid bill must be enacted. The states can then proceed as they wish about adopting it. Those which do not want to adopt it must understand their failure to employ federal aid is a part of the price they are willing to pay for their concept of states' rights.

The basic situation now is that unless there is federal aid a great many institutions will not be able to function and many millions more of American children will be given second and third-rate preparation than now receive it.

The Southern states have face the heavy fact that while they spend a good share of their income on education, it is less than other states put into it. Their children already are being given less than others.

Maintenance of the American way of life makes it impossible for the government to fail in maintaining educational opportunity for "all the children of all the people."

Jekyll Plan To Get Push This Week

By WILLIAM M. BATES

Administration forces will push ahead with a compromise Jekyll Island plan despite State Auditor B. E. Thrasher's opposition, House Floor Leader W. Colbert Hawkins said Sunday.

The Screven County representatives said he expects the new proposal to be ready for introduction this week. It would keep the one-time millionaires' resort in state hands but permit sale of residential and undeveloped commercial lots.

"PROTECT INVESTMENT"

"The only way that this can be done is to reach an over-all method of disposing of property and getting some money out of it and at the same time protecting the state's investment in the island," the floor leader declared.

The Legislature reconvenes Monday for the final half of the 40-day session. With action completed on only a handful of bills, both houses are expected to turn up the legislative pace during the next three weeks.

COMPULSORY SCHOOL

The House Monday is scheduled to vote on a compromise measure to permit the governor to suspend the state's compulsory school attendance law if this becomes necessary to preserve order and protect persons and property. It is designed for use in the even of a school integration order.

The measure represents a retreat for the Griffin administration which originally had backed

Cobb Boy, 3, Lost in Rain and Cold, Found As 1,000 Search All Night

By FRANK WELLS

A tired little three-year-old "rabbit hunter" rested Sunday night in his own bed, worn out from being lost in the woods 15 hours.

Johnny Manton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Manton, left his home in the Floyd Community of Cobb County late Saturday afternoon with a brother, Frank, to get another brother, Jimmy, playing near the Seaboard Railroad tracks.

On their way home, Johnny followed some older boys deep into the woods "to hunt rabbits" and got lost.

Searchers numbering more than 200 Saturday night and up to 1,000 early Sunday morning scoured the countryside.

CRIES HEARD

At 10 a.m. Sunday, Thomas Richard Hagler, 8, who lives just a little way from John, heard a child crying in the woods. He told his mother, Mrs. T. E. Hagler, who went to the child and brought him to her home.

"I don't know how to get home," Johnny said when found. And he worried about his two brothers. "They're lost, too," he said.

Mrs. Hagler notified Johnny's parents, who took the lad to the office of a private physician in Austell.

'SOME BAD MEN'

Johnny said that he wanted to kill some jack rabbits Saturday and followed the bigger boys who "had some rifles."

At one time Saturday night searchers were nearer to John than they knew.

Sheriff Kermit C. Sanders said that Johnny told him:

Cypriot Turkish Mob Stones Greeks and Attacks Hospitals

NICOSIA, Cyprus, Feb. 3 (AP)—A Turkish Cypriot mob went on a rampage of stoning and burning today in the Greek quarter of the east coast port of Famagusta.

Defying a British curfew, about 100 Turks attacked a hospital and a church, set fire to a warehouse and stoned a private clinic. At least 12 persons were injured.

Terrified nurses at the hospital sounded an alarm after a doctor's car and a number of bicycles were smashed. Greek church bells were rung to summon Greek Cypriots to defend their homes.

But the Turkish mob moved on to a house and beat up a mother and four children, police said. The Turks entered a citrus warehouse, attacked seven Greek packers, and set the building afire.

The Turks were returning from the funeral of a Turkish policeman killed last night, presumably by Greek EOKA terrorists who demand union of Cyprus with Greece.

Military patrols were increased. Sound trucks toured all towns and larger villages of the island shortly before dawn.

All males from 12 to 27 were told they must keep off the streets day and night from now until Feb. 12. All Turks and Greeks were told to stay in their own sectors.

But the Turks in Famagusta went to the policeman's funeral, then slipped past British security patrols and went charging into the Greek section.

The British government hinted at another reason for the curfew in a statement issued in Nicosia while order was being restored in Famagusta.

The statement said the government has been informed reliably that unnamed terrorists—presumably EOKA—planned a campaign of violence this week.

The announcement said the aim was to provoke disturbances between Turks and Greeks a week before the U.N. debates the Cyprus issue.

Knowland Aims at March 1 To Get Ike's Civil Rights Before the Senate

Knowland, the Republican leader, told reporters the senate may have to "wear down" an expected Southern filibuster against consideration of the bill if the necessary 64 affirmative votes can't be mustered to muzzle debate.

By whatever means the end is accomplished, he said he is confident that civil rights legislation will be enacted in this session of Congress.

"I hope we can get a bill reported to the Senate by the Judiciary Committee by the end of this month," he said. "As soon as the Middle East resolution is out of the way, then we ought to turn our attention to civil rights."

Democratic leaders were reported less optimistic than Knowland about early Senate action. They apparently believed the civil rights measure would not be brought up in the Senate until late in April.

Chairman Hennings (D-Mo) has ordered committee hearings on civil rights proposals beginning Feb. 12. Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), who voted against a proposal last week by Hennings to report a civil rights bill out of a Judiciary subcommittee without hearings, said he will oppose any effort to drag the hearings out.

The full Judiciary Committee is reported to favor action on civil rights legislation by an 11-4 margin.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va) served notice that Southerners are prepared to fight.

"We will make the best fight we are capable of making to prevent any action on these bills," Byrd said in an interview. "The proposal to permit taking civil rights suits directly into federal court is one of the most iniquitous ever made in Congress."

Under Eisenhower's proposals the attorney general or even a private citizen could seek injunctions in federal courts to enforce school integration. Where injunctions are granted, violators could be punished for contempt, without jury trial.

Saud Says His Talks With Ike Raise Hopes For Peace in Mideast

Eisenhower Talks Today With Guard

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (UP)—President Eisenhower returned to Washington from Augusta, Ga., today with hopes of cooling off the raging controversy between National Guardsmen and Defense Secretary Wilson.

Eisenhower, who enjoyed a week-end of golf at his favorite resort, the Augusta Golf Club, was scheduled to meet tomorrow with four top officials of the National Guard Association.

The President returned from Augusta in the government plane, Columbine III, at 4:55 p.m. EST and went immediately to the White House.

TO SOOTHE GUARD

A House Armed Services subcommittee opens public hearings tomorrow on the whole military reserve program. Some 30 witnesses are scheduled to testify in what could lead to an airing of the universal military training issue.

It was expected that Eisenhower will attempt to soothe the ire of the guardsmen about Wilson's recent remarks concerning the Guard.

The defense secretary told the House Armed Services committee that the National Guard was a "sort of scandal" during the Korean War, with many youths using it as a "draft dodging business."

'UNWISE' STATEMENT

The remark created a furor, with Maj. Gen. E. A. Walsh, president of the Guard Assn., calling Wilson's charge "a damned lie." Many Guard officials, congressmen, and even state legislatures demanded that

Israel Insists On Its Terms For Pullout

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Feb. 3 (AP)—Israel's Cabinet decided today to keep troops in the Gaza Strip and on the Gulf of Aqaba for the present despite a U.N. General Assembly resolution calling a sixth time for their withdrawal.

An Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman in Jerusalem said the Cabinet took its firm stand because "no guarantees have been obtained yet for definite stoppage of Egypt's belligerency and sea blockade of Israel."

Israel also stuck to its own plan for peace in both occupied areas in the face of a second resolution endorsing U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold's rival plan.

Hammarskjold sent Egypt and Israel copies of both resolutions, adopted late last night.

He invited members of the Israeli delegation to meet with him tomorrow. But he was understood

Romanians Vote For Parliament

VIENNA, Austria, Feb. 3 (AP). Bucharest radio said tonight nearly 11 million Romanians voted in today's parliamentary elections.

The radio said more than 94 per cent of Bucharest's voters cast ballots before early evening, but that in some places there was a complete turnout of the vote.

The elections were on a one-ticket ballot for 437 seats in Parliament.

KHRUSHCHEV FOE

A Kremlin Boss Shot As Plotter?

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (UP)—The New York Daily News said tonight in a dispatch from Washington quoting "intelligence sources" that Lazar M. Kaganovich, deputy premier of the Soviet Union, had been shot mysteriously in a Kremlin power struggle and was near death.

A dispatch from News Washington correspondent Jerry Greene said Kaganovich, 64, was a hard-core Stalinist who wanted to remove from power Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin.

K-B ORDERS?

"Khrushchev and Bulganin, recognizing Kaganovich as the chief schemer in a plot to bring their ouster and a complete Kremlin reshuffle, reportedly ordered the deputy premier shot," the News said.

"Something went wrong," the dispatch continued. "Kaganovich was only gravely wounded when struck down by a bullet Thursday night, and now he is apparently receiving every care."

"Dr. Hans Joachim Schulten of Cologne, West Germany, was hurriedly summoned by the Kremlin and flown to Moscow Saturday to treat Kagnovich," the News said.

GERMAN FLOWN IN

The United Press correspondent in Moscow reported today that Dr. Schulten had been flown from West Germany to treat a critically ill "mystery patient" in Moscow. Schulten told United Press he had examined the patient, but does not known who he is.

Schulten said the patient was in critical condition. He said the patient was not Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov or Deputy Premier Georgi Malenkov, both of whom have been reported ill recently.

Kaganovich, the only Jew remaining in the Soviet hierarchy, was known as the "iron commissar" while serving as troubleshooter for the late Premier Josef Stalin.

Vows To Aid U.S., Arabs Find Accord

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 — A statement authorized by King Saud said tonight that "there is good reason to hope" that talks between himself and President Eisenhower "will contribute to the establishment of stability and harmony in the Middle East."

The statement said the king was "attempting to promote further undestanding among all the Arab countries and the United States."

Abdullah Balkhair, Saud's press officer, said the statement had been authorized by the king in response to questions.

The statement underlined the king's role as spokesman for the Arab Middle East.

It read as follows:

"While the discussions have been concerned chiefly with problems which affect our two governments, they have also dealt with matters that concern the entire Middle East.

"His majesty King Saud is emphasizing Arab problems in the discussions and is attempting to promote further understanding among all the Arab countries and the United States.

"The discussions are progressing in an amicable atmosphere. Moreover, there is good reason to hope that the talks will lead to an understanding which will contribute to the establishment of stability of harmony in the Middle East."

United States authorities welcomed the statement as an indication that the king has been favorably impressed by the exposition of the so-called "Eisenhower Doctrine" he had heard

N. Georgians Start Fleeing Rising River

The Oostanaula River rose steadily Sunday beyond its flood level, necessitating evacuation of seven families at Resaca, about 30 miles north of Rome.

Flood stage of the river is 29 feet. It was 30.2 feet late Sunday, and Chief of Police R. C. Hayes said it was rising more than an inch an hour. He added, though, that rains have stopped temporarily.

In Rome, the Oostanaula crested Friday and is expected to hit its peak again Tuesday.

Atlantans probably will have dry days Monday and Tuesday, the Weather Bureau said. While forecasting cloudy skies, the bureau said there is only a slight possibility of rain. It should be warm.

The Atlanta airport was closed by drizzle three hours Sunday morning.

Cigaret Cancer Traced To a Filterable Tar

By PRESTON GROVER

PARIS, Feb. 3 (AP) — A French-educated Vietnamese scientist working with the help of American money was credited today with discovering a substance in cigaret smoke which invariably causes cancer in mice when injected into them.

But, a report adds, the chemical can be filtered out of the smoke.

Discovery of how quickly—and surely—this substance causes cancer in mice was made by Dr. Nguyen-Phoc Buu Hoi, 41. The discovery has just been announced in a paper published by the French Academy of Science.

The paper says the substance was isolated in the smoke and tested by Dr. Buu Hoi after lengthy experiments in the laboratory of the Radium Institute of the University of Paris

The paper was written by Prof. Antoine Lacassagne, director of the institute.

The chemical has the curious identification of 3-4-9-10 Dibenzpyrene. It develops only when tobacco is burned in smoking. It is one of scores of chemicals making up the "tar" in burning tobacco that long has been suspected of increasing the number of lung cancer victims among smokers.

Dr. Buu Hoi said it should not be difficult to work out a filter to fit cigaret holders which would screen out the dibenzpy-

Johnson Asks Visits By Mideast's Chiefs

Asserts U.S. Has Plenty To Show and Nothing to Hide

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) urged the State Department today to expand its program of inviting Middle Eastern leaders to the United States.

Johnson, the Senate's Democratic leader, said repetition of his theme "a search for more realistic relations" had been held with Saudi Arabia by the visit here of King Saud.

"Other visits by Middle Eastern leaders are scheduled and I believe that nothing could be healthier for our country," Johnson said. "Unlike the Russians, we have nothing to hide and plenty to show and we should take advantage of that fact."

The Texas senator said he had urged the State Department to schedule more similar visits because he felt that Middle East leaders "cannot help but be impressed by a first-hand view of American life."

Saud's visit has drawn fire from some prominent officials, notably Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner Jr. of New York City and Republican Sen. Javits of New York. They raised the issues that American Jews have been barred from the U. S. air base in Saudi Arabia, that Catholic soldiers and civilians are not permitted to hold religious services in Arabia, and that Negroes are still held in slavery there.

Johnson, who has attended some of the state dinners given for and by King Saud, said he was not informed of any specific invitations to other heads of states in the Middle East area.

Crown Prince Abdul Ilah of Iraq has arrived in this country on an unofficial visit and is scheduled to confer with Washington officials this week.

Asked how he stood on inviting Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, President Nasser of Egypt and Premier David Ben-Gurion of Israel, Johnson replied he was not going to talk about individuals but he had one position for all:

"I am not fearful of anyone's having a look at America. I think our form of government will stand inspection."

The Democratic leader said that by issuing such invitations the United States does not "express approval or disapproval of their governments."

"The point is," he said, "that they be given some idea of our intentions which are basically to keep the world at peace."

Tito cancelled, for the time being, a projected visit to this country because of the storm of criticism raised in Congress and elsewhere.

There was some speculation among members of Congress that King Hussein of Jordan might be among those invited to visit here.

Right Wing Reds in U.S. Going Bourgeois, Russia Cries

The move seemed intended to strengthen the hands of those persons in the party still completely loyal to Soviet leadership of the International Communist movement.

Soviet Russia said "rightist elements" of the American party are insisting that Bolshevism was "born in a specific Russian atmosphere not directly connected with Marxist words."

It said they have "undertaken a revision of Marxism-Leninism and are attacking Leninism as a specific Russian phenomenon."

The article, signed by S. Tumarkin, described "revisionist" tendencies which include some independence from the Moscow leadership—as "a spiteful form of bourgeois nationalism disguised in Communist terminology."

A spokesman for the American Communist Party in New York, informed of the Soviet Russia article, said:

"They're entitled to their opinion and we're entitled to ours. At our convention we'll arrive at our own decisions based on our own estimate of the American and world political situation."

Ever since February, 1956, when Nikita Khrushchev denounced Stalin at the 20th party Congress in Moscow for his crimes, there has been increasing controversy within the ranks of the American Communist Party.

Some Communists want to see the American Party pursue a policy more independent of Moscow and they have run into opposition. The party's convention in New York Feb. 2-12 will deal with this controversy.

Nehru Says He'll Never Let U.N. Guard Kashmir

By A. M. ROSENTHAL

NEW DELHI, Feb. 3—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told 10,000 cheering Indians today that he would never allow U.N. troops to be stationed on the soil of this country.

That was Nehru's personal reply to Pakistani suggestions that troops of both nations be withdrawn from bitterly disputed Kashmir and that a U.N. guard take over.

"India will not tolerate the stationing of foreign troops in any part of her territory under any circumstances," said Nehru. His words were applauded and cheered repeatedly.

ELECTION CAMPAIGN

The Indian leader talked about Kashmir toward the end of a 90-minute political speech, part of his Congress party's election campaign. Indians will vote in a few weeks for new parliament and state legislatures.

Nehru has insisted that the United Nations had recognized India's right to maintain security in Kashmir. Nehru, who has rejected the idea of a plebiscite to which India once committed herself, took note of heavy press criticism of him abroad.

He said some people accuse him of disregarding international commitments and are angry. Others, he said, are "happy because they think my stature has been reduced."

STATURE IN INDIA

"If I have any stature it is you, my countrymen, who have built it up and no outsider can detract anything from that."

Nehru added that if he could be convinced he had violated international obligations he would either honor them or resign.

Nehru said India and Pakistan must settle the issue of Kashmir peacefully. An Indian government spokesman said last week India would be willing to discuss a division of Kashmir on the basis of the present cease-fire line.

The spokesman said no more than Nehru has said before. On April 13, 1956, at the same meeting ground where he spoke today, Nehru said he had told Pakistani leaders:

"I am willing: to accept that the question of the part of Kashmir which is under you should be settled by demarcating the border on the basis of the present cease-fire line. We had no desire to take it by fighting."

Hungary Reds Terrorize Students To Crush Revolt

By JOHN MACCORMAC

VIENNA, Feb. 3—The Budapest government disclosed today a campaign to crush rebellious activity by college students, whose demonstration Oct. 23 sparked the Hungarian revolt.

The government government disclosed that the homes of students of Budapest University had been searched and that large quantities of arms, ammunition and "counter-revolutionary" literature had been seized.

The searches revealed the existence of a large-scale armed plot against the Hungarian state, the government said. A number of students were arrested.

Albert Wass, professor of [illegible] appealed to the students to end their dissident activities. He said:

"A number of students and professors are continuing their strike in the Hungarian universities. Those who do not want to study or teach are unworthy to belong to Hungarian universities and the government will take draconic measures against them."

The provisional executive committee of Mefez, the student organization founded just before the revolt, appealed to students to cease "incitements and provocations and what were termed the false slogans with which they were causing disturbances.

If students did not heed this warning, universities would be closed, the committee said. The committee was appointed by the government of Premier Janos Kadar to supersede the original body elected by the students.

British Trim in Defense Cost Won't Be Huge, Sandys Hints

By KENNETH LOVE

LONDON, Feb. 3 — Defense Minister Duncan Sandys hinted today that Britain's planned cuts in military spending may not be drastically large.

Sandys scanned the Sunday newspapers at London airport this morning immediately after his return from defense talks in Washington. He said to reporters:

"You should look with some caution at some of the rather fantastic speculations that have emerged in one or two of the Sunday papers about the extent of the cuts that are contemplated in defense. Some of these speculations of astronomical cuts in defense belong more to the geophysical year than to the realms of reality."

QUOTE AMERICANS

The observer, in a dispatch from Washington on Sandy's talks with U.S. officials, quoted American sources as saying that Sandys had suggested cutting Britain's defense spending to 750,000,000 pounds ($2,100,000,000), half of what it is now.

The Sunday Times said Sandys' mission would enable the cabinet to complete a defense program that would achieve a 20 per cent cut in spending over the next two years.

Sandys said his talks with U.S. leaders had convinced him that both governments wanted to restore "fully and at once the special and intimate relationship between our two countries which was momentarily interrupted by recent events."

He said his negotiations would result in still closer cooperation in defense planning and that, in addition, "they provided a most valuable opportunity for a frank exchange of views on wider topics."

"U.S. UNDERSTANDS"

"No country welcomes a reduction in defense effort by its allies. But I'm quite sure that as a result of our talks the American government now understands very much better the necessity on economic grounds for us lightening our defense burden.

"I think we all recognize that economic strength is an essential foundation for military strength."

Sandys said he agreed with Defense Secretary Wilson that "we talked to one another as members of one family." He added that both sides wanted it that way.

Defense Fund For 7 Alabama Whites Is Started

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 3 (AP)—A collection drive was kicked off today to raise a legal defense fund for seven white men charged with [illegible].

The goal is $50,000, according to Jack Brock, spokesman for the "Alabama Segregation Defense Fund." He is a former state president of the American Federation of Labor.

Brock said collection buckets were passed out to persons who will conduct door-to-door solicitations for the fund. It will be used to defend anyone arrested on warrants sworn out by Negro leaders who seek to break down segregation, Brock said.

The seven were arrested after a wave of seven bombings of Negro churches and homes of integration leaders and of six ambushes with gunfire of integrated city buses. Preliminary hearing for them is scheduled for Friday.

7 Dixie States Turn To Pupil Placement

A Key Part of Legal Strategy To Safeguard Segregation

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 3—Increased attention in Southern legislatures and courts to pupil placement as a means of avoiding or delaying desegregation was noted today by the Southern School News.

The monthly publication devoted to race relations in the field of education said Tennessee last month joined six other states in adopting pupil placement units providing for assigning students to specific schools under various criteria but usually excluding race as a factor.

LAWS VARY

It said the Tennessee law differs from the one enacted in Virginia and declared by a federal district court to be unconstitutional "on its face."

"The Virginia set differs from the Tennessee and other acts in that it provides for placement by a statewide board and vests special powers in the governor," Southern School News quoted legal authorities. "It was called unconstitutional because accompanying legislation, according to the court, clearly required racial segregation by its implementation."

PROPOSE SAFEGUARDS

In addition to Tennessee and Virginia, the publication listed Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana and North Carolina as states using pupil placement as an answer to the U.S. Supreme Court's desegregation decision. It was noted that some 30 standards or rules under which pupils may be assigned to individual schools have been written into the laws of these states, with some of the legislation using "nearly identical language."

Louisiana's law was ruled invalid last year, but North Carolina's was held "not unconstitutional on its face."

Southern School News reported that the segregation issue has been raised in one way or another in every Southern state where the Legislature is in session.

In Arkansas, the publication said, Gov. Orval Faubus warned the Legislature against tampering with the state's pupil assignment act lest it be "jeopardized." No bills on school segregation-desegregation had been introduced up to the end of January.

FLORIDA PLAN

In Florida, Gov. Leroy Collins told the Legislature in his inaugural address that integration is inevitable but that the state, under its pupil assignment law, has found a way to maintain segregated schools for the "foreseeable future."

The North Carolina Legislature, Southern School News reported, may be asked to reenact preseregation tuition-grant and school-closing legislation passed at a special session last year and later put into the state constitution.

Eleven preseregation bills, including a pupil placement plan, have been introduced in Texas.

The Georgia Legislature is pushing plans to strengthen preseregation laws and give the governor broader powers to deal with disorders.

On the other side of the picture, Southern School News reported the desegregation of one additional Southern school district—this one in Oklahoma, where the ending of segregation started in January. This brings to 673 the number of districts in Southern and border states which have lowered racial barriers, the publication said. About 3,000 districts having white and Negro students remain segregated.

Negro Worships In White Church

DARLINGTON, S.C., Feb. 3 (AP)—A Negro sat among the white congregation at this South Carolina town's largest church today without incident.

Witnesses said the Negro, who was not identified, entered the First Baptist Church and sat a little more than half way up towards the front throughout the entire service.

The entrance of the Negro caused a stir in the church but there was no attempt to oust him. The Rev. William S. Jones, pastor of the church, made no mention of the Negro in his remarks.

Nehru Urges Looser Grip On Hungary

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Feb. 3 (AP)—An authoritative diplomatic source here said today Prime Minister Nehru of India is quietly putting pressure on the Soviet Union to change its attitude toward Hungary.

The Indian leader, this informant said, has told the Kremlin no permanent, peaceful settlement in that rebellious satellite can be obtained until the Soviet leadership recognizes the national, patriotic character of the Hungarian revolution.

Talk of the Indian attitude, which is believed to have considerable influence on certain Kremlin leaders, circulated among diplomats from six West European countries assembled in the Belgian capital for a meeting at which they will try to remove things from proposed customs union and atomic pool agreements among France, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

He Saw 3-Foot Flames Spurt From Wings, Says Survivor of Plane Crash Killing 20

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—A survivor of the Northeast airlines crash that killed 20 persons Friday night said today he saw flames "three feet high on both wings" before the plane struck the ground.

"I fly often and I know the difference between fire and ordinary engine exhaust flames," Edwin J. Brenner, 35, a real estate operator and builder of Queens, New York City, said. "These flames were red or orange. Some feet high. They were not a blue flame."

Brenner said he was sitting with his wife Roslyn, another survivor, on the right side of the plane, three rows back from the cockpit. The plane crashed on tiny Hikers Island in the East River just 12 seconds after taking off from LaGuardia Field.

"I remember telling my wife that we were off the ground and then I looked out the window again and I saw flames on the right," he said.

"I looked out the other side and saw flames on the left and then we went bumpety-bump. We heard no explosion or noise at all."

Brenner said "scary passenger that got off that plane owes his life" to Capt. Alva Marsh. He added:

"Get this straight. The pilot of that plane is responsible for my talking to you and for the safety of everybody who got out alive. He performed a miracle.

"He put us on that smooth piece of land—Hikers Island. Three inches further and further and he would have hit a building and a little shorter he would have gone in the river and we wouldn't all have drowned."

Marsh had been in two previous accidents but no one was killed in them. In 1951 he grounded in the East River just short of LaGuardia field on a flight from Boston. All aboard were rescued. In 1953 a nosewheel failed as he was landing at LaGuardia but no one was hurt.

Marsh and his crew said immediately after the crash that they noticed no engine malfunctioning or any indications of trouble on the cockpit dials, which indicate the operations of all parts of the engines.

The plane burst into flames after hitting the ground and medical examiners said all of the deaths resulted from burns, smoke inhalation and asphyxia.

CONSIDER THE Episcopal WAY

WHY PRAY out of a book?

For the same reason we sing out of a book. We pray out of the same book so that we can all pray together—in unison. Not many outside the Episcopal Church realize that the "Book of Common Prayer" is the tie that binds this great body of Christians together.

To us Episcopalians, it is thrilling to know that when we follow our Prayer Book in our churches here in the United States, there are 45 millions throughout the world using the same service, but in their own language, to worship the living God.

Our "Prayer Book" is the guide book for the orderly Episcopal service, in which the members of the congregation take an active part.

We believe it to be true that the Book of Common Prayer, next only to the King James' version of the Bible, has been the most influential book ever printed in English. When you visit the Episcopal Church near you, you'll find a copy of the Book of Common Prayer in the pew ready for your use. A fellow-worshipper near you will be happy to show you how to follow the service.

You'll enjoy learning more about this great book. Send for your free copy of How We Get the Prayer Book by signing and mailing the coupon below.

Sale of Lots On Jekyll Held Illegal

John Calhoun, secretary of Jekyll Island Authority, said Sunday he believes the selling of Jekyll Island lots would be illegal.

He said that if the people of Georgia want to sell the lots they probably would have to approve a constitutional amendment authorizing the sale.

Calhoun, authority chairman Fred Aldred and authority member W. T. Giles were guests on WSB-TV "Press Gallery," presented by the Atlanta Journal.

NO REQUEST

Cook said Sunday that he has not yet received an official request for a ruling on whether island lots can legally be sold. Prior to such a request, Cook said he would have no comment on the issue.

Calhoun said he did not want to "prejudice" Cook, but that he believes lot sales would be "contrary to existing laws."

Aldred and Calhoun said they are opposed to selling lots, which now are subject to long-term leases offered by the state.

Giles said he is not "strongly" against selling lots, but that he would "hate to see that lead to piecemeal disposal of the whole island."

CHECKERBOARD

Calhoun said the sale of lots also would create a problem of "checkerboard administration." He explained that the authority would still be responsible for police, fire, water and sewage service to lots under lease, but that Glynn County would be responsible for these services for any lots that might be sold.

Of 600 lots available for lease, the authority now has 152 leased, Calhoun said. He added that more than 100 leases have been cancelled, "largely as a result of threats to sell the island."

Gov. Griffin has contended the state should sell the entire island, with the exception of beaches, which he said should be reserved for the use of the public. Last week he announced his support of legislation to authorize sale of lots.

Aldred said that despite criticism of Jekyll operations, the authority has done "an extraordinary good job" and has "wasted no money."

SOME MISTAKES

He acknowledged that the authority "has made mistakes." One of the biggest, he said, was failure to have a single contractor carry out the work authorized in a $397,000 appropriation Griffin made to the authority last year.

As for ex-state Sen. Jimmy Dykes, who heads the corporation that has the vast Jekyll hotel properties under lease, Aldred said:

"I haven't seen eye to eye with him by any stretch of the imagination." But he added that Dykes is a "puller and pusher" who "gets a good job done."

Jekyll Plan To Be Pushed In Assembly

a bill to abolish outright the compulsory attendance law.

The Senate Monday takes up a string of minor measures and a House-passed bill to require merchants who sell Japanese textiles to display a sign so informing their customers.

Senate Administration Leader Peyton Hawes of Elberton said he expects three administration-backed segregation bills that have already cleared the House to reach the Senate floor by midweek.

Another House fight is expected this week with reconsideration of a bill by Rep. Jack Ray of Warren County to make unwed mothers who swear their child is illegitimate subject to criminal prosecution.

The latest flareup over Jekyll Island was triggered by an agreement on the island's future reached last week by Gov. Griffin and key legislators.

In addition to permitting some outright real estate sales on the island, the compromise would add Thrasher and state parks director J. W. Brinson to the present five-member Jekyll Island Authority.

But Thrasher served notice that he wants no part of it "if there are any plans to make a real estate development out of the island." Instead, he said the island should be removed from the political arena and be developed for the "average" Georgia family.

State's Top Jurists Deserve Pay Hikes

Proposals are being made in the General Assembly to increase the salaries of members of the Georgia Supreme Court and the State Court of Appeals.

Backed by the Georgia Bar Association, the measures would increase the annual pay of the state's top jurists from $14,000 to $20,000.

The request is within reason and should be approved.

There are few good lawyers in Georgia who could not earn more than $14,000 a year in private practice and with less expense to themselves.

As the state improves economically, opportunities in the legal profession become greater and the need for legal service increases. But so do the demands upon the courts, increasing the work load of the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court.

Judges of the Court of Appeals and the State Supreme Court usually must maintain two residences—in their home towns and in Atlanta. Their expenses are heavy and economic conditions will make it more and more difficult for them to afford to stay in these offices under the present salary structure.

Other proposals to raise the pay again of Superior Court judges deserves closer scrutiny. Present pay scales, which allow for county subsidies in many circuits, should not be interfered with until the Assembly takes a thorough look at the whole Superior Court organization in the state.

Circuits should be reorganized on a basis of population. As it is today, some judges carry twice the work load of others. This situation should be adjusted before another blanket raise is authorized.

But Georgia's highest jurists deserve and should get a pay raise. If it can be worked out within the governor's "hold the line" policy, the General Assembly should approve it. In the long run, it would promote better justice and thus would be an economy for the state.

Foreign Trade Becomes Big Business in Georgia

While the Georgia Legislature considers a measure which would require merchants to post signs identifying Japanese textiles sold in their stores, it might be a good idea to note that world trade through Georgia ports has become big business.

A report released by the U.S. Department of Commerce last week showed that exports and imports passing through the three ports making up the Georgia customs district from January through October had a value of some $152,400,000.

Of the total amount, $83,300,000 represented exports and $69,100,000 consisted of imports—a favorable balance of some $14,000,000. The rise in exports registered a thumping 30.2 per cent over the previous year.

The approximate value of all goods moving through the Southeastern ports for the first 10 months added up to $2,560,500,000.

Any way you look at it, foreign trade grows increasingly important to the region's economy. One cannot help asking the question how exporters would feel if such signs about Georgia-made goods were required to be posted in the countries where we sell.

Reds Talk Disarmament While Increasing Power

The Soviet Union again has accused the United States of planning an atomic war and of evading a solution to the problem of world disarmament. With typical cynicism, the accusation said that the Soviets "would continue efforts to solve the problem."

In the meantime, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke has disclosed that the Russians are building toward a fleet of 1,200 submarines which could be used "to hit us with a shock at the beginning of a war." The chief of U.S. Naval Operations then declared that Russia is employing mass production techniques to turn out a vast submarine fleet.

Simultaneously, Democratic senators investigating the state of the nation's air power have charged that the Eisenhower administration's "tendency either to ignore or underestimate" Soviet military progress has dangerously weakened U.S. defenses against atomic attack.

The Senate group cited the relative decline of U.S. air power in relation to the Russians and said that the vulnerability of this country to sudden attack has increased greatly and still is increasing.

The truth is that the Soviet Union still is devoting most of its energies to preparations for war. Its disarmament proposals have been mostly deceptive propaganda. The Reds have rejected any inspection system which would make an agreement worth more than a scrap of paper.

The Kremlin still is arming war-minded Arab states and inciting unrest in the Middle East.

Until the Reds demonstrate good faith with deeds, the United States can do nothing less than to keep its armed forces at a high level of proficiency. Russian power must be countered with equal power. The lesson of Hungary is too recent to give us any cause for optimism or apathy.

With Vaccine Available, Why the Polio Cases?

With 1957 scarcely more than a month old, already three polio cases have been reported in the state.

The two most recent are Newton County babies, one 2 years old and the other 17 months. Neither had received Salk vaccine.

Surely here is warning enough to all parents who haven't given their children the protection that the Salk shots promise.

Adults, too, are reminded again that polio has little respect for age. There is Salk vaccine for grownups, too.

Driver Education Bill Deserves Firm Support

Georgians vitally interested in cutting the traffic toll will have a chance to say a word for safety today at 1:45 p.m. in the old Supreme Court Chamber at the Capitol.

That's when and where the House Motor Vehicles Committee will hold a public hearing on the proposed driver training bill.

The bill would require that beginning in 1958 no one under 18 be licensed to drive in the state until he has successfully passed a driver training course.

While passage of the measure would not help in regard to those incompetents already licensed to drive, it would eventually lead to the day when every driver was the product of a driver education course.

There is nothing new about driver education. It has been under test in the nation since 1931 and in a few Georgia schools for several years.

The experience of 17 years shows that the formally trained young person is a twice better safety risk than is he who attempts to learn to drive by accident.

As for the place of driver education in the curriculum among the "fundamentals," we can think of nothing more fundamental than learning to stay alive.

The worth of a human life is an issue the motor vehicles committee faces in considering the compulsory driver education bill.

May the committee place the worth of life high enough to send the bill to the House with the recommendation that "it do pass!"

Let's Contribute to Fight Against Heart Disease

The heart is a mighty muscle that pumps the flow of life. When the pump stops, so does life.

Heart disease is responsible for 52 per cent of all deaths in Georgia. Approximately 300,000 Georgians suffer from some type of heart ailments.

The Georgia Heart Assn.'s annual fund drive began Friday. Its goal is $300,000 to be used in research, education and community services.

Have a heart. Donate toward keeping more of them on the job.

A Youthful Politician Shouts Inspiring 'No'

There was a resounding chorus of "ayes" from the floor.

Then the speaker asked, "all those opposed, sic."

Legislatory were startled to hear a shrill feminine "no."

The owner of the voice in dissent was the 6-year-old daughter of a House member. She was serving as page for the day.

With the innocence of youth, the little lady just didn't know when a chorus of "ayes" resounds, it isn't legislative cricket to shout "no."

'YMCA Capital Funds Drive Merits Support Of Citizens Interested in Well-Being of Youth'

Atlanta—Some quick facts supplied by your business editor, Jim Montgomery, should point out to the people of Atlanta the real need for the success of the present $3,250,000 YMCA capital funds drive.

A survey of the spending plans of close to 230,000 families making up the Jan. 1 two-county population of 762,000, as revealed by the Bureau of Business and Economic Research of the Georgia State College of Business Administration, and reported by Jim Montgomery, tells us that between Nov. 1, 1956-Oct. 31, 1957 Atlantans will buy: 30,000 homes (13.4 per cent of the families, compared with 9.6 per cent nationally); about 28,000 new cars (12.6 per cent here, against 8 per cent nationally); more than 11,000 used cars. More than a fourth of the Fulton-DeKalb families expect to buy furniture or appliances and more than 25,000 are planning home improvements.

Almost all of "these good things of life" will be purchased by adults who have had their chance. $3,250,000 asked by our YMCA to improve existing buildings and the construction of 11 new branches to serve our youth seems a paltry sum by comparison.

I believe the foregoing facts deserve the attention of every parent in Atlanta.

Who's Going To Ask Permission for Binge?

Atlanta — Those people over there in the Legislature sure do come up with some weird ideas.

Soon as they let up for awhile on trying to put unwed mothers into jail they think up something else silly.

The latest one I read about along that line was aimed at an apartment tenant having to get his landlord's permission to get drunk.

Already it's against the law to get drunk on the highways, on the streets and no telling where else. I agree that we ought not to have drunks on the highways or in public places.

In fact, I'm for sobriety. But I just can't see somebody calling up his landlord and asking: "Do you mind if I get intoxicated, being that my rent is paid?"

I believe the Legislature would do better if it spent more time on such subjects as trying to be sure all that tax money is being used honestly and wisely.

Teachers' Work Hours Not Confined to Class?

Marietta—I doubt seriously if W. G. Williams has made a thorough study of the duties of a teacher. He says, "The teachers are the highest paid hourly group of people in this United States."

What Mr. Williams doesn't know is that the hours a teacher works during a school day are not nearly all the hours he works on the job. Does he know that a teacher spends many hours working at home checking homework, grading test papers, recording students' grades and preparing material for the following day's classes?

Mr. Williams should broaden his observations before saying teachers are overpaid.

He Will Not Tolerate Any Form of Tyranny

Atlanta — I should like to commend the House for refusing to pass the "Unwed Mothers" bill. It shows that the world is progressing toward the light.

As for Rep. Twitty's speech in support of the bill, "it is in my opinion a lamentable attempt to undermine freedom of religion by attempting to pass into law the ethic of a particular religious group.

Although I am a Christian I always will oppose any attempt to enforce by law any (supposedly) Christian or any other purely religious ethic, where a principle of equity, that is, in protecting the life, liberty or property of the individual citizen is not involved.

Like Thomas Jefferson, who was a vestryman in his own church, "I have sworn upon the altar of the Almighty eternal opposition to every form of tyranny over the mind of man."

Go Slow on the Sales Talk: Jekyll Belongs to Georgians!

Jekyll Island belongs to the State of Georgia. Make any further statement about the beautiful clump of land connected by a bridge to Brunswick and it would undoubtedly raise a controversy. The state has dumped millions into improvement of the island.

Great plans have been forwarded in successive Assemblies for many years to make the island a public resort. But politics have played havoc.

Now Jekyll Island with all its headaches has heard the governors of the state to the point that Gov. Griffin says let's get rid of it. He surmises the state would be better off without the problems and expense of the island—that is, if the state can get its money out of the pint by selling it.

Agreed that the easiest way to stop a headache is to pinch one's head off, but what lies ahead if the state does sell the island? Its apparent that private ownership would capitalize on the magnificent resort facilities of Jekyll. Exclusive hotels would eventually have set the little man, the average Georgian.

Only a comparative few would ever stroll along the miles of beaches where the state now has an opportunity to make public beaches available to thousands of Georgians.

Jekyll is not a "place." The money which has been spent and the wrangles which have consumed legislative time and wasted taxpayers' money without any noticeable change in the composition of the island are indefensible. Management is the problem.

Men who have been assigned the duty of carrying out renovation of Jekyll have fallen short; perhaps they were at times not given a free enough hand and enough money, perhaps at other times they were given too free a hand and political greed entered the picture.

At any rate, it certainly seems that the State Legislature could work out a once-and-for-all program to make Jekyll an asset to the state on a long-term basis without legislators throwing up their hands in utter despair.

Thomasville Times-Enterprise

Among the unusual and yet expected efforts in the General Assembly is a movement to build the governor a new mansion. Every now and then some such movement crops up.

There are very few people who would mention any of the departments and objectives of this state just for the pleasure of building a new Governor's Mansion.

There are many things Georgia needs more than a new mansion for its governor. Many have felt the present house safe and pleasant enough and they have lived there at no penalty to themselves or their families.

New Field Beckons In Working for Lord

The man on the green was saying, "I have a great idea for us to develop. When can we get together and talk it over?" The only answer I could make was on Sunday. I invited him home and let us talk in the vein a year I had met when I was thing back.

He was an executive in one of the movie studios, a country preacher's son like I am, and a great Christian. We became good friends. Now he is interested in producing film for television. He wants to do some strong religious films and would like for me to do a series of quiet-type talks that would be used on a number of stations.

I was getting as excited as he about the possibilities. Then Mamie spoke up. She often speaks up! "If you do that it will take time for preparation. Where will you get that time and what will you drop that you are now doing?" After he had gone I thought about that idea of having to drop something I am now doing. I have nothing I want to "drop."

First and most important with me is being pastor of a church. I would not give that up for anything else. My congregation is very kind to me and long suffering. They give me a free hand in my work. As far as I am concerned I would now sign a contract to be a pastor in Atlanta the balance of my days. In addition to preaching on Sundays, there are funerals, weddings, visits and the administrative work. My church will always be first with me.

Then there is the chance to write in the newspaper. It is a blessed privilege to talk through this column to hundreds of thousands of people every day. Not a day passes without friendly letters telling me of some help a column has been. I thank God for a newspaper that gives a minister this opportunity. Also, I love to give the radio talks each Sunday.

Through publishing books one also can preach the gospel effectively. From every state have come letters from friends made through my books. My publishers wrote insisting on a book for next Christmas—one that would tell the story of the Lord's Birth. They must have the manuscript by the end of February. It is requiring some "midnight oil" but I'll get it to them.

Then there are the opportunities to preach in other churches. Last week I was in Hialeah, Fla. Not only do they have a race track there, but some great churches. This week there is the great camp meeting with Bishop Moore at Sea Island. Next week is the big preaching mission in Johnson City. I love talking to people face to face about the glory of the Lord.

Many calls come for personal counseling. I regret I cannot answer them all but they are important. I must see all that I can. When one needs help it worries me if I have to say "No."

None of this is hard or burdensome for me. It's the fun I get out of life. I don't want to "drop" anything but that movie fellow has a great opportunity. I guess we'll work it in some time.

Herbert Hoover Jr. Served Effectively

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower administration continues to draw good men to the government—and to lose them. The latest is the substitution last week of Christian A. Herter, former governor of Massachusetts, for Herbert Hoover Jr., who resigned after nearly four years' service as undersecretary of state.

Herter brings demonstrated capacity to a critical post which has been well-filled by Hoover, who had hoped to leave the government for personal reasons six months ago. He stayed on longer, however, to serve during the weeks Secretary Dulles commuted to London for the Suez conferences and during Dulles' recovery from his operation.

Nobody could be in government at his level as long as Hoover without making some enemies within the ranks and no doubt there were some who found it convenient to use him as a whipping boy when they didn't get their way.

From my own observation and such experience as I had with the retiring undersecretary — and this view, I believe, is shared widely by his associates in the U.S. State Department — Hoover did a painstaking and effective job under circumstances which were at times difficult.

He was a loyal and able instrumentality for carrying forward the policies of Dulles. He and the secretary of state saw things alike.

Hoover began his diplomatic service by doing more than any single individual to resolve the bitter Anglo-Iranian oil controversy which almost plunged Iran into the grip of the Soviets.

He has been an advocate of American economic assistance to the Middle East and was one of those in the government who was ready to go forward with the Aswan Dam project until it became clear that it was not going to be economically and politically possible.

He was acting secretary of state when the American government obtained a copy of the famous Khrushchev speech indicting and downgrading Stalin for all the crimes in the Russian language. Hoover had the boldness and the imagination to insist that the department immediately make it public and exploit it.

Hoover was one of the least self-seeking public officials I have known. He is a rather diffident man who prefers to work behind the scenes.

These are, no doubt, some of the reasons President Eisenhower said last week he hoped Hoover would be available for new public service "soon."

Slavery Lingers On, Not Only in Arabia

WASHINGTON—We are nearly a century away from the end of human slavery in our country. It was on Jan. 1, 1863, that Abraham Lincoln issued the emancipation proclamation. That freed some 3,120,000 Negroes from bondage on plantations in the southern half of a nation which, 89 years before that, had subscribed to the words of Thomas Jefferson in the Declaration of Independence:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." (There was no amendment reading, "except for people with black skins.")

But it was, at any rate, a long time ago we banished human slavery. So we can condemn human slavery existing anywhere today, such as in Arabia.

Still, to the sensitive ear there might come the rumble of dynamite blowing up the homes of ministers of the Gospel in Montgomery, Ala. They have committed no crime, except to have black skins as did their forbears who were slaves, and to accept in good faith a decree of the United States Supreme Court that they can sit where they please on public buses so long as they pay their fare.

What sort of an example the Southern Ku Klukers are setting for some of our future citizens we learned from an incident in Long Island, N.Y.

Three youngsters were arrested on juvenile delinquency charges. They had paraded through a Negro neighborhood wearing Ku Klux Klan uniforms they had designed. They scattered anti-Negro literature and carried cardboard signs on which they had printed, "Get Out of Town."

Prejudice travels fast.

It is no secret that our government is being nice to the king of Arabia partly because of the oil concessions to powerful American interests. The royalties from them provide money with which he can buy more slaves, more wives and concubines, more Cadillacs.

But the solicitude for big oil interests by our government is not only in the Middle East nor is it anything new. Congress bends the knee right here, has for a long time. It gives big oil companies special privileges in their taxes so they don't pay as you and I do.

In the early part of the Eisenhower administration, with the President's blessing Congress turned over offshore oil lands to the states, as was sought by big oil companies.

And once again we seemingly may look ahead to the biggest bonanza of all for the big oil companies—namely, the bill to exempt natural gas producers from regulation by the Federal Power Commission, which the President urged in his budget message a few days ago. It would be a windfall of immense proportions and would cost consumers heavily.

While the visit here of the king of Saudi Arabia may help the cause of peace in the Middle East, which is the President's hope, maybe it will turn the gaze of the rest of us inward upon ourselves to see if we are entirely free of the slave complex, of intolerance and prejudice, of special privileges for the rich and powerful.

A Dorm Divided Against Itself

Fact Over Fiction: Under "For Use on Return Visits," I have filed a story about a small college with only one dormitory. The space shortage forced the school to house both men and coeds in the same building, the boys in one end and the girls in the other. A line was drawn and with it a strict "No Crossing" rule.

One of the boys broke the rule and crossed over. He was called before the dean.

"You realize, my boy, that you have been guilty of a serious offense," the dean said.

The boy said he did so realize.

"Since this is the first time you crossed the line," the dean went on, "I am going to fine you 50 cents. If you cross the line again, the fine will be $1. The third time it will cost you $10. Now do you have any questions?"

"Yes, I do," the boy said. "How much is a season ticket?"

I told that story in Covington the other night.

After I did, Aubra Sherwood, president of the Rotary Club, got up and said, "You must have been talking about Emory Junior College at Oxford. We have only one dormitory there. Since the school has gone coed, we house the boys in Units A and B and the girls in C and D."

Aubra is sure there is a rule, but so far as he knows, no season tickets. Aubra Sherwood, by the way, is mayor of Oxford.

$10 Million For Airport 'A Bargain'

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Alderman Jesse Draper said Sunday that the 10 million dollars requested for the new Atlanta Airport is a bargain.

Draper, chairman of the aldermanic board's aviation committee, released reports of estimated income that show the bond issue could be retired in 10 years. "Everything afterward would be gravy," he said.

The 10 million dollars is the portion of the estimated 70 million dollar bond issue planned for city and county improvements.

CONSERVATIVE FIGURES

Airport Mgr. Jack Gray, his assistant, Grady Ridgeway and engineers of Robert & Co. Associates, mapping the improvement program collaborated in anticipating future receipts. Draper released them, saying, "They are so conservative. I would like to guarantee those estimates with the understanding I could pocket any excess."

Although income at the airport has increased $100,000 a year since 1954, Draper said estimates are that income the very first year after the 19-million-dollar improvement program is completed will exceed $1,367,000, more than double the $580,072 collected last year.

INCOME SOURCES

Major sources of income are airline payments for landing fees, rentals, concession privileges, including catering and restaurant privileges.

The huge improvement program would be financed jointly by the city, Civil Aeronautics Administration matching funds and by airlines using the facility.

"I cannot emphasize too strongly that every dime and more of any expenditure we make at the airport will be repaid from added receipts," Draper said. "Citizens of Atlanta have never before been offered such a bargain in bonds. The project will repay the initial cost many times.

"There, however, is one word of warning which should be added. We must arrange to finance the complete program or make arrangements for some sort of deficit financing. We cannot get maximum operational efficiency and maintain the city's leadership in aviation unless the whole job is done. That is the reason we are urging 10 million dollars in bonds for adequate financing."

Picked Cotton as Child, Touring Maid Reveals Here

Helen Landon

Helen Landon, the 1957 Maid of Cotton, learned how to pick cotton as a child in Tennessee, but the best thing she does with cotton is wear it.

The beautiful University of Tennessee coed arrived in Atlanta Sunday afternoon on her good-will trip around the country for the cotton industry. She will be here until Wednesday and will appear in fashion shows at a department store.

COTTON-LIKE SILK

Miss Landon—36, 5 feet 8 inches, 123 pounds, blue-green eyes and blonde hair—wears cotton exclusively in the shows. Sunday she had on a trimly tailored grey suit which looked like raw silk but was all cotton.

She immediately telephoned Miss Kay Holloway, who was Atlanta's representative in the Maid of Cotton contest last December.

Atlanta is her second stop on a tour which will include more than 40 major cities in the United States, Canada, Bermuda, and Europe.

TENNESSEE GIRL

Miss Landon calls Huntington, Tenn., her home. The cotton title fits in more ways than one for Miss Landon. One of her ancestors, Col. John Donelson, planted the first cotton west of the Allegheny Mountains and her family has been cotton planters in the Nashville area for seven generations.

Miss Landon's plane had to circle Atlanta for almost two hours Sunday waiting for the fog to lift.

"We could look down on the clouds," the Tennessee girl said. "They were beautiful. Looked just like cotton."

Driver Training Wrangle Boils Over As Legislators Prepare To Tackle Bill

By CHARLES MOORE

Thoughtful educators throughout Georgia are debating whether the Legislature should require high schools to teach driver education, a measure the legislators will take up Monday.

"What subject will be dropped to permit this educational course and when will the trend away from basic education ends?" asks a Thomaston principal.

"Who else will teach driver training if the schools don't?" asks a Fulton County educator.

"Are the taxpayers willing to shoulder the heavy cost of special automobiles and teachers if driver training becomes compulsory?" asks an official of the Atlanta League of Women Voters.

"Driver training is an important part of anybody's education," says Paul West, superintendent of Fulton County schools, where the course has been offered about six years.

The course takes five hours a week and runs six months in the Fulton system. The students study the rules of safe driving and the mechanics of an automobile for several weeks before they get behind the wheel in the dual-control car.

It is one of the elective subjects offered students in the 11th and 12th grades. Each student must choose three elective subjects in addition to basic courses in English, geometry, American history, military science or physical education, and human relations.

When a student elects to take driver training it "reduces to a degree" his choice of subjects that would benefit him if he goes on to college or in the business world, admits Douglas G. MacRae, an assistant Fulton superintendent who is in charge of the program.

More bluntly, Kenneth J. Moore, a principal at Thomaston, asks: "Would you rather have a secretary who could drive or one who knew how to use the English language and how to type?"

Moore said the schools have been "scorned and hounded" by charges that today's high school graduates know little of spelling, math and English.

However, West believes despite the adding of courses outside the "three Rs" schools today are offering the same basic requirements for graduation that they did in 1900 because the school day is an hour and 15 minutes longer now than then.

The cost of offering driver education in Fulton County has been "neglible," West said. "The only cost has been salaries for instructors, thanks to automobile dealers who furnish the training cars free."

At the Atlanta North Fulton High School, the city appropriates $32 for each student enrolled in driver training. However, this is not enough, a school official said, and the Buckhead Civitan Club donates an additional $3 per student.

"And that cost of $31 a child is with the training cars given free by dealers," said Mrs. Ray Mitchell, executive vice president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters.

If today's prosperity is no longer with us, would the auto dealers be willing to donate the special automobiles? If not, would the taxpayers be willing to pay for them with increased taxes?

"These are all things to think about before driver training is made compulsory," Mrs. Mitchell said.

"But if the schools don't teach driver training, who else will?" West asks. "Everybody has tried to pass the buck," he said.

Driving training in the schools is not the full answer to the rising number of highway accidents, MacRae noted. "The mere knowledge of the mechanics of driving will not in itself reduce accidents," he said.

City Engineer Foils Attempt To Burn 2 Pups Alive in Incinerator Here

An Atlantan didn't succeed in his attempt to burn two puppies alive Sunday afternoon.

According to engineer Joe E. Morgan of the city's incinerator, someone threw two collie-type puppies in the pit at the incinerator.

"We heard the puppies and got them out before they went into the burner," Morgan said. "I called the Humane Society and they came and got the dogs."

AFL-CIO May Oust 3 Unions for Frauds

Crackdown Expected Today As New Fund Rule Is Applied

By HERMAN WALKER

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 3 (AP)—AFL-CIO leaders are expected to stage their first big crackdown tomorrow in applying new anti-racketeering rules against three federation unions accused of corruption.

Members of the AFL-CIO Executive Council said the three unions were found guilty of "gross violations" of the council's ethical practices standards.

A MAJOR STEP

It is in for a major slap in Meany's current drive to clean up vestiges of corrupt influence.

The unions involved are the Laundry Workers, Distillery Workers and Allied Industrial Workers, the three having a combined membership of about 750,000. A Senate Labor subcommittee in 1955 revealed raids on the welfare funds and the AFL-CIO itself has since been conducting its own probe.

Meanwhile, the Executive Council issued a statement tonight urging the government to provide a haven in this country for at least 200,000 refugees from Communist-ravaged Hungary. The statement said the present 21,500 limit left "freedom - loving Americans ashamed."

President Eisenhower recently asked Congress to step up the immigration quotas and also to waive the regular immigration quotas. In this regard, the AFL-CIO council said, regular quota immigrants should be increased to 200,000 a year.

"America is in a strong enough economic position," the council said, "to absorb a reasonable number of immigrants without increasing unemployment, especially for American workers."

The committee charged unions in the laundry, distillery and industrial workers whose were approved by the AFL-CIO's Ethical Practices Committee based on the Senate committee findings and additional investigations.

"COMPLETE CLEAN"

The Ethical Practices Committee's reports, to be made public tomorrow, were reported to condemn all three unions for failing to meet the honesty standards in the AFL-CIO constitution. The reports make no recommendations for council action but, officials said:

"It leaves our course clear."

The reports say the three unions have failed to conduct adequate cleanups since the 1955 Senate investigation.

The council, during the first phase of its winter meeting last week, adopted a union of codes detailing and forbidding practically every known union practice that could lead to fraud. It also ruled that union officials taking the Fifth Amendment to avoid personal involvement in corrupt practices should be expelled from office.

Ike Advisers Ask Incentive Pay Setup To Entice the Talented Into Military

By E. W. KENWORTHY

(Abridged text of The New York Times)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—A new military pay system that the administration plans to send to Congress in March will offer large inducements to talented young officers, as well as to skilled enlisted men, to make the armed services a career.

This "green pastures" plan is the work of a committee of four general-grade officers and eight civilians, including the assistant secretaries for manpower of the three services. The committee chairman is Ralph J. Cordiner, president of the General Electric Company.

CASH REWARDS

It would do this by offering cash rewards for critical skills, proficiency and leadership.

In short, the Cordiner committee would jettison what it calls the present "Methuselah" system, in which mere length of service is rewarded, and substitute a system based on merit, incentive and need.

1. An immediate pay raise. This would not be, as with past raises, an across-the-board percentage increase. The raise would be weighed heavily in favor of the senior grades in order to put the emphasis on advancement.

2. Sharp cutoff points beyond which there would be no further pay increases for length of service.

The committee has found that officer pay is now out of line with living costs and the position officers must maintain.

Since 1908, basic enlisted pay has increased 900 per cent. The pay of a major general has gone up only 60 per cent, and the average pay for all officers only 100 per cent.

The committee also found that the present system discourages initiative.

It is basically wrong, the committee says, that 5,500 lieutenant colonels now make more than 3,500 colonels, and that 4,500 majors make more than 13,000 lieutenant colonels simply because of length of service and regardless of their capabilities.

CIVILIAN REWARDS

As a consequence only one out of four junior officers stays in the service after the obligatory three-year period. Very often the best men leave.

The committee argues that this situation involves great danger for national security.

At present, the three services have a large surplus of officers of the World War II and Korea group—who have served 12 to 14 years. This is called "the hump."

But behind the hump is a broad "valley"—the shortage of officers who have had four to 12 years service.

BACKBONE GROUP

The four-to-12-year group must form the backbone of operation units—the company commanders, the deck officers, the pilots. From this group must come the field and staff officers of tomorrow.

The shortage in this group is now 27,000 officers. This represents half the total officer requirement.

The committee's pay proposal will have to pass the scrutiny of the Budget Bureau and Congress.

This is how the proposed monthly pay scale for active duty compares with the present scale for comparable grades in the Army, Air Force, Marines and Navy:

Second lieutenant and ensign—Pay now begins at $222 and rises to $374 after 14 years in service.

BEGIN AT $333

It would begin at $333 and rise after two years to $392. Thereafter no increases for length of service in grade.

First lieutenant and lieutenant junior grade—Pay now begins at $259 and rises to $412 after 14 years in service.

It would begin at $325 and rise to $375 after four years in grade. Thereafter no increases.

Captain and Lieutenant—Pay now begins at $328 and rises to $514 after 22 years in service.

It would begin at $410 and rise to $460 after six years in grade. Thereafter no increases.

Major and lieut. commander—Pay now begins at $400 and rises to $582 after 26 years in service.

It would begin at $530 and rise to $630 after six years in grade. No further increases.

Lieut. colonel and commander—Pay now begins at $474 and rises to $660 after 26 years of service.

$710 TO $860

It would begin at $710 and rise to $860 after six years in grade. No further increases.

Colonel and captain—Pay now begins at $560 and rises to $711 after 26 years of service.

It would begin at $800 and rise to $1,000 after four years in grade. No further increases.

Rear admiral and rear admiral—Pay now begins at $660 and rises to $837 after 30 years of service.

It would begin at $1,200 and stay there.

Lieutenant general and vice admiral — Pay now begins at $1,000 and rises to $1,175 after 30 years of service.

It would begin at $1,300 and stay there.

General and admiral—Pay now begins at $1,125 and rises to $1,375 after 30 years of service.

West Weighs Big 4 Talks With Russia

LONDON, Monday, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Daily Mail said today the United States, Britain and France "have begun exchanging views on the possibility and usefulness of holding a Big Four meeting with Russia in the near future."

The newspaper predicted that any such meeting will be preceded by sweeping changes in the Kremlin leadership.

Quoting unidentified "experts" on Soviet affairs, the Mail forecast the early "dismissal, resignation or demotion" of President Kliment Y. Voroshilov, Slain Control Minister V. M. Molotov, Vice Premier Lazarus M. Kaganovich and Vice Premier A. I. Mikoyan.

The Mail repeated recent widespread speculation that Premier Nikolai Bulganin might take over the presidency, being succeeded as premier by Nikita Khrushchev, now boss of the party. It added that former Premier Georgi Malenkov might take over Khrushchev's present post.

"Disquieting rumors from satellite capitals — usually well informed on Kremlin decisions—suggest that an agreement on political problems has been reached between President Eisenhower and Soviet Defense Minister Zhukov, arising from their contacts at the last summit meeting in 1955," the Mail said.

"These rumors have created panic among Communist leaders in East Germany and Prague. They fear a direct deal between Washington and Moscow which would hand East Germany and Czechoslovakia over to the West."

7 Die, 6 Hurt As Algerians Bomb Homes

By DAVID MASON

ALGIERS, Feb. 3 (AP)—Algerian Nationalists struck with bombs and grenades today, the eve of United Nations debate on their two-year rebellion against French rule.

Seven French Jews were killed when a powerful bomb wrecked an European apartment building in Nedromah, an Arab town near Algeria's western frontier with Morocco.

6 INJURED

Two men, two women, two little girls and a small boy died. Three Moslems and three Jews were injured.

Another bomb wrecked part of the Nedromah police headquarters, but there were no casualties. A third bomb was found and dismantled before it exploded.

Three persons were wounded seriously when a Nationalist rebel hurled a grenade into a grocery at Tlemcen, also in Western Algeria. Two persons were wounded by three grenades thrown into bars at Tiaret.

Meanwhile, French forces claimed they had wiped out another 63 rebels in military operations.

AMBUSH

A Nationalist band, about 100 strong, ambushed a French patrol near Sidi bel Abbes, headquarters of the French Foreign Legion.

Eight members of the 21-man patrol, including a captain, were killed.

The ambush, a familiar rebel tactic, was the first reported since the Nationalists began a general strike throughout Algeria last Monday. The strike call, at first obeyed by most Moslem shopkeepers and workers, was only a spotty success by the end of the week.

Marilyn Named 'Best Dressed' of '57; Only 2 Hollywood Stars in Top 10

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Marilyn Monroe, movie blonde, was chosen today as the actress "most admired" woman of 1957 by the American Institute of Fine Dressers.

The President's wife, who made the Hall of Famous Women, was picked runner-up. "She knows how to dress herself attractively," according to Marie, the spokesman.

Actress Grace Kelly and Rosalind Russell were the only Hollywood actresses named to the list of 10 "best dressed."

Marilyn Monroe

by the institute, which said it conducted a survey among the nation's leading hairdressers to reach its decision.

"Most Hollywood stars, in a misdirected attempt to gain attention, are always in hair grooming habits," Marie said.

"Women of the influence they wield on our land—women like Marilyn Monroe, Jayne Mansfield, Elizabeth Taylor, Anita Ekberg and Jane Russell ought to be spanked," he said.

"They certainly have the money to groom themselves properly, and if they lack the taste to do it themselves, they ought to hire people capable of advising them correctly."

Others named to the 10 best list were singer Kate Smith, mistress Kate Roosevelt, Mrs. Arthur Murray, dancer and TV star; Ethel Merman, musical comedy star; Arlene Francis, television actress; Julie Andrews, musical comedy actress; and Austine Hearst, columnist.

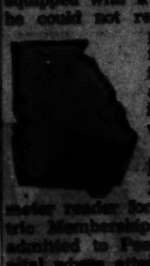
Ft. Valley Man Is Pinned By Truck 21 Hours

A Fort Valley man spent 21 hours Saturday and Sunday trapped between a tree and the door of a truck deep in a wooded section of Macon County.

Although the truck was equipped with a two-way radio, he could not reach the microphone with his free arm to inform leaders of a large searching party of his whereabouts.



Identified as a Frank Hester of Fort Valley, a meter reader for the Flint Electric Membership Corp., he was admitted to Peach County Hospital where attendants listed his condition as fair.

Officials of the co-op said at the organization's Reynolds headquarters that the search for Hester by sheriffs' officers from Houston, Macon, Peach and Crawford counties, the state patrol, company employees and about 50 citizens from Fort Valley ended about noon Sunday when two unidentified men found him.

The officials said Dr. Willis Webb of Fort Valley spotted Hester from a private plane about the same time and landed in a nearby field. Webb and the Negroes placed him in the plane and the doctor then flew to the Peach County Hospital.

Hester was reading meters along the company's lines about 3 p.m. Saturday when he parked his truck on an incline near a lake. The truck began to roll and an open door pinned Hester to a tree.

He blew the horn on the truck in an effort to attract attention until the battery went dead, officials reported.

Urban Growth Meeting In White House Is Asked

Groundwork for New Slums Laid in Cities, Planners Fear

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—A White House conference to deal with the problems of metropolitan growth was urged today by the National Planning Assn.

The NPA, an advisory group of public and economic professionals, called for a 10-year urban planning project to do with the growing city, city of suburbs and metropolitan problem.

The project might call for the formation by a state legislature of a new agency which would include representatives from local governments, business, labor and the professions and would work on representatives from both state and local governments with the planning commission for guidance.

The NPA also said that a well organized staff should prepare for the conference and to meet again to review the entire 10-year program, about five years later.

GOING TO REGIONS

Following the White House conference, the NPA recommends regional and metropolitan conferences. The NPA said that the federal government should finance the national and regional conferences with the metropolitan conferences locally financed.

The NPA report said that the urban centers of the United States are becoming obsolete with their traffic problems, spreading slums, inadequate schools, parks, hospitals and unsatisfactory conditions.

It is to be expected that within the next 50 years the national population may well rise by 150 million with at least 120 million settling in and around the metropolitan areas, the NPA report said.

"Our piecemeal programs, federal, state and local, are only nibbling at the growing problems," said the association.

While half a million slum families have been cared for in new public housing since 1933, more slums spawn each day and five million families now remain ill-housed, the report said.

In the growing suburbs, the report continued, over-eager and irresponsible developers and inexperienced local officials working without comprehensive plans are laying the groundwork for new suburban slums which our future society will pay for.

The NPA report said that the great social and economic values which men seek by living together will be frustrated unless people can get quickly and easily from home to work, to schools, to recreation or to see each other professionally or socially.

The NPA report said that a 10-year program can never settle all U.S. urban problems but decisions can be reached after the available facts are presented by the best thinking of experts.

"The 10-year program would not be a blueprint designed to control the future.

"It would be a bringing together of the best current thinking of what America needs to begin to modernize the urban centers of this land by 1975," said the report.

Road Toll Rises to 12 In Georgia

Twelve persons lost their lives in weekend Georgia traffic. The toll included two brothers hit while riding a bicycle and a pedestrian struck by a hit-and-run motorist.

The State Patrol said Judson M. Marks, 26, of Rte. 1, Waycross, died early Sunday when the car in which he was riding overturned about five miles west of Villa Rica on U.S. 78.

AUTO HITS WOMAN

Mrs. Arrie Ethridge, 43, of Rte. 3, Milledgeville, was killed Saturday night when the car in which she was a passenger broke suddenly to avoid one car and skidded into another about seven miles south of Milledgeville in Baldwin County.

James Melvin Taylor, 18, and Charles William Taylor, 11, both of Atlanta, died Friday night when a car struck the bicycle they were riding on Marietta boulevard in the Atlanta area.

John Franklin, about 40, of Dalton, was killed by a hit-and-run driver while walking on Georgia 53 about six miles south of Calhoun Friday night.

HEAD-ON CRASH

Sybil L. Taylor, 21, of Rte. 1, Luta, was injured fatally Friday night when the car in which she was riding collided head-on with another car about 10 miles north of Gainesville on U.S. 23.

Other Saturday deaths included:

James Everett New, 21, of Rte. 1, Powder Springs, whose car collided with a truck on South Gordon road about two miles east of Mableton.

Fred Golden Davis, 44, of near Lithia Springs, whose car ran off the road and overturned several times seven miles north of Homerville on U.S. 441.

Walter H. Smith, 21, of Rte. 2, Blackshear, whose car went out of control on a curve on Georgia 121 within the city limits of Blackshear.

AUTO OVERTURNS

James Edward Barnes, 42, of Douglas, was killed late Sunday when the car he was driving went out of control on a curve and overturned several times on Georgia Highway 32, five miles east of Douglas, the patrol said.

W. I. Smith, 57, of Rte. 5, Commerce, was killed Sunday when the car in which he was riding collided with another automobile at an intersection of Georgia Highways 29 and 98 in Danielsville, Madison County, according to the patrol.

Teresa Mae Carter, 7, was injured fatally Sunday when she was struck by a car on a Chatham County road, the state patrol said.

NEHRU GREETS ATLANTIAN AT TB MEETING
New York's Dr. James Perkins, center, and Dr. Anderson

A World Defeat for TB Forecast by Expert Here

By BOB WILLIMON

Tuberculosis—which still ranks along with malaria and malnutrition as a prime killer in the world's underdeveloped countries—may lose its place as a major health problem in another 20 years if current progress in controlling the disease is maintained.

That's the opinion of Dr. Robert J. Anderson, chief of the Communicable Disease Center here and for 10 years the Federal Governments predominant TB control officer. Dr. Anderson's comment came as he was asked to "size up TB control progress as reflected at an international conference he attended at New Delhi, India.

1,000 DOCTORS ATTEND

The Atlanta official, who returned Friday from a five-week, 35,000-mile air trip to and from the 1,000-doctor conference, said India alone currently has five million TB deaths a year. Aside from educational and communications handicaps, Dr. Anderson listed budgetary limitations and the concentration of medical facilities in cities as among the major obstacles to effective TB control in underdeveloped countries.

"It requires a year or more and some $100 worth of drugs alone to treat one TB patient," Dr. Anderson said. "Although the U.S. Government offers these countries matching funds with which to buy the drugs, the economics involved apparently are still bogging down control programs. There is hardly a family in these areas that doesn't have a case of TB. Then there's the problem of finding the TB victims after you've got the drugs."

On the brighter side, Dr. Anderson said there are "many dedicated young U.S.-trained doctors — particularly in the Philippines — who are doing exceptionally good TB control work for salaries as low as $20 a month." He said he perceived an "optimistic note" at the conference and added the countries involved are "getting organized and immediate gains are apparent." No new "miracle cures" were announced at the meeting, the official said.

INSPECTS ASIAN WORK

Dr. Anderson inspected U.S.-sponsored medical facilities in Alaska, China, Japan, Korea, the Philippines and Saigon during his trip. He said that in Saigon there were only 100 doctors to serve the country's 15 million people, and that these were concentrated in the city of Saigon.

The U.S. TB death rate has dropped "since about 10 years ago" from 40 per 100,000 population to "below 10 per 100,000 population," Dr. Anderson said. He attributed the decrease to the discovery of the drugs Streptomycin, Izoniazid and Paraaminosalicylic.

Dr. Anderson was chief of the U.S. Public Health Service's Tubercular Control Program between 1948 and 1954.

800 Attend Methodists' Winter Rally

By KAY McLEOD
Constitution Church Editor

ST. SIMONS, Feb. 3 — More than 800 persons attended the opening session Sunday night of the second annual winter camp meeting at the Methodist center, Epworth-by-the-Sea.

Dr. Harry Denman, secretary of the Methodist board of evangelism, Nashville, Tenn., told the group that the "greatest need of this hour is for those who call themselves Christians to know Christ."

During the meetings, which continue through next Sunday, two Atlantans, Bishop Arthur J. Moore and Dr. Charles L. Allen, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, will preach, alternating with Dr. Denman.

All of Brunswick's Protestant churches closed their doors Sunday night and the congregations assembled at Epworth-by-the-Sea. Other churches throughout south Georgia are planning motorcades to bring delegations to the camp meeting.

Services are held at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. daily in the Strickland Memorial Auditorium. Thursday night has been designated as Laymen's Night; Friday night will be known as Woman's Society of Christian Service Night, and the youth of the area will combine their district meetings here and then attend the service Saturday night.

Families of Mentally Ill Getting State's New Help

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

Helping the families of mentally ill patients is a new and important aspect of the state's mental hygiene program.

Dr. Guy V. Rice, director of the State Health Department's health conservation services, including mental hygiene, said families of mental patients have the "same basic need for help that any family with any kind of illness has."

He said the Mental Hygiene Division of the State Health Department worked with officials of Milledgeville State Hospital in planning an experimental program of "supportive services to families of mentally ill persons who need hospitalization."

TRAIN NURSES

These services are provided by public health nurses who are given special training to help the mental patient's family. Nurses in eight Georgia counties already are providing such services. They are Tattnall, Toombs, Dodge, Johnson, Jones, Wilkinson, Muscogee and DeKalb.

Dr. Rice said these services "will be expanded as fast as possible until they are statewide."

Services of public health nurses under the program include:

1. Helping the family accept the patient's mental illness.

2. Explaining admission procedures, rules and regulations of Milledgeville State Hospital.

3. Assisting the family with commitment procedures.

GIVE FACTS

4. Providing information about the hospital, its policies and diagnostic and treatment procedures.

5. Visiting furloughed patients to help them adjust to the home and community.

Dr. Rice said there is no doubt such services are needed since Milledgeville State Hospital has a census of more than 11,000 — and each of these individuals comes from a family unit.

He said the public health nurses goes to Milledgeville State Hospital for an orientation visit for three or four days to enable her to work better with patients' families. The State Mental Hygiene Division finances this orientation. The division also has a psychiatric nurse who advises local public health nurses on specific problems under the program.

Miss Florence A. Beasley, consultant nurse for the State Health Department, said the program already has proved advantageous. She said relatives show more interest in the patients, cooperate better with the hospital and have a better understanding of the patient's treatment.

The Mental Hygiene Division sponsors various other statewide projects, including the district clinic program. Mental hygiene clinics are located in Atlanta, Savannah and Macon, and clinics are planned in Augusta, Columbus and Athens.

FOR CHILDREN

Dr. Rice said the mental hygiene clinics are "principally for children with emotional problems." He said youngsters with psychiatric problems are referred by private physicians or agencies to the clinics for diagnosis and treatment.

He said the minimum staff for each clinic includes a psychiatrist, a social worker, a psychologist and a clerk.

Driver Wrecks His Truck on 4-Lane, Averts Second Crash Into Same Car

Special to The Constitution

MARIETTA, Feb. 3—A tractor-trailer collided with a car Sunday on the four-lane Marietta highway. The car went bouncing along for about 100 feet, police said. Then the driver of the truck found himself bearing down on the unfortunate automobile a second time. He swerved his truck off the highway, and it overturned.

Police said there were no injuries. Here is the description given by Patrolmen J. W. Reeves and Edward Gann:

Dewey Hardy, 38, of Aragon, was driving the car when the truck, carrying 18,000 pounds, collided with it, police said. Hardy, and his car, accelerated by the truck, went another 100 feet.

Lee Roy Allen, 28, of 1268 DeKalb Ave., NE, the driver of the truck, then saw Hardy's car move into view over the horizon. He turned off the highway. His truck overturned and rolled 100 feet down the bank. Traffic was blocked for about a mile from the accident, which occured a mile south of Marietta.

lay real quiet, and they went away."

Mr. and Mrs. Manton are newcomers to the Floyd Community.

"We moved here from Yonkers, New York," Mrs. Manton said. "I was so glad that the children would have a lot of room to play in and that we need not fear traffic. But I never thought John would get lost. I certainly found out what good neighbors Georgians are. Everyone was so wonderful in finding my little boy and I wish I could thank each one of them personally."

National Guardsmen, servicemen from Dobbins Air Force Base, Marines from Atlanta, Cobb County, Atlanta and Marietta police, sheriff's deputies, officers from other towns, volunteers from Lockheed, and just plain neighbors swelled the total searchers to near 1,000 Sunday morning, according to Sheriff Sanders.

"Everybody who was asked to help did so immediately," Sheriff Sanders said. "You couldn't ask for better co-operation than we had."

Searchers combed the area which contained woods, streams, a lake and a railroad. It was once feared that the child might have been hit by a train that passed through about the time he got separated from his brother. Trains were halted in Greenville, S.C.; Hampton, N.C., and Atlanta but there were no signs they had struck anyone.

John was kept at the clinic for a few hours Sunday. No complications set in, so Mrs. Manton took him home about 3:30 p.m.

John was only five-eights of a mile from home when he was found. Searchers estimated that he had walked a mile and perhaps more.

John told his mother that when it got dark Saturday night he lay down and slept a while, then got back up and started trying to find his way home again. It must have been at this time that the searchers passed close to the boy.

Israel Holds To Terms For Pullout

he marking time on concrete steps to carry out his plan until Israel withdraws.

An informed Arab source said he believes Egypt eventually will accept Hammarskjold's suggestion that U.N. observers be stationed at the Gulf of Aqaba to guarantee unmolested travel in the gulf for Israeli shipping.

This would forestall, at least temporarily, the renewal of Egypt's blockade of Israeli shipping there. Israel demands that its shipping not be intercepted before pulling its troops from the eastern shore of the gulf.

The 59-nation Assembly acted just before midnight after an all-day session involving eight hours through three meetings. Its decisions were:

Resolution No. 1 called upon Israel "to complete its withdrawal behind the (1949 Egypt-Israel) armistice demarcation line without further delay."

This was adopted, 74-2, with only France and Israel opposed. Luxembourg and The Netherlands abstained.

Resolution No. 2 said, "After full withdrawal of Israel from the Gaza Strip, El Sheikh and Gaza Strip," U.N. police forces should be put on the demarcation line to supervise the "scrupulous maintenance of the armistice agreement."

It asked Hammarskjold, "in consultation with the parties concerned," to take steps to carry out further measures for "maintenance of peaceful conditions in the area."

Ike Returns to Capital For Talks With Guard

Wilson either apologize or resign.

Eisenhower defended the Guard against the draft dodging charge. He told his news conference last Wednesday that Wilson's remark was a "very unwise statement."

The President's rebuke brought an angry reply from Mrs. Charles E. Wilson who said newsmen she was "indignant" at the President for his criticism of her blunt-speaking husband.

In an apparent attempt to mollify the Wilsons' ruffled feelings, the President invited them to fly to Augusta with him yesterday aboard the presidential plane "Columbine." The Wilsons later went on to Florida for a two-week vacation.

The President's two-day golfing respite in Augusta was marked by rain and fog. He was able to play only 11 holes yesterday before a cold rain sent him scurrying back to his cottage at the edge of the golf course.

Eisenhower managed to get in a little golf today before taking off for Washington.

The Wilson-Guard dispute stemmed from his proposal to compel all Guard recruits after April 1 to take six months basic training if they have no previous military training. The Guard Assn. opposes the idea.

Walsh asked for the White House appointment for the Guard officials the same day Wilson levelled his charges.

The four officials scheduled to confer with the President are Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of Maryland; Maj. Gen. Edward D. Strole, former commanding general of the 28th Infantry Division; Maj. Gen. Earle M. Jones, adjutant general of California, and Maj. Gen. Ronald C. Brock, commander designate of the New York National Guard.

Walsh also may join in the conference.

It was expected that the Guard officials would protest against any drastic change in the present program, under which youths between 17 and 18½ years old may escape the draft by joining the Guard.

Poland Quits Radio Jamming

CANNES, France, Feb. 3 (AP)—Poland's information minister said today his country stopped jamming foreign broadcasts last Nov. 1—about a week after embarking on her road to independent communism.

"We want to give our people true and objective news of the world situation," Wladislaw Bieruti said in an interview. The Polish minister came here for an international radio and TV festival.

He said his government no longer censors the press "except when state secrets are at issue. The press is free to criticize the government and does it with unusual vigorous."

Tests Show Filter Halts A Cancer Tar in Cigarets

Bau Hoi, a descendant of the royal family that ruled Viet Nam for generations, is director of the French National Center of Scientific Research, a part of the Curie Institute associated with the University of Paris. Money for the research was supplied in part by the United States Public Health Service.

Dr. Bau Hoi said in an interview that tests had been conducted in America and elsewhere after a warning association between lung cancer and cigaret smoking was reported. A less complicated substance—3-4 benzpyrene was long suspected. U.S. researchers announced in October 1954 that benzpyrene was discovered in smoke from cigaret paper and that it caused cancer in mice. Dr. Bau Hoi said he felt that was too discouraging and after eliminating dozens of other compounds settled on tests of dibenzpyrene.

About 4,000 mice were used in the experiments. Dibenzpyrene, injected into mice, produced cancer in as little as 42 days, and ultimately every mouse injected developed the cancer. A dose of one-half milligram in each animal developed the cancer.

With benzpyrene, a dose five times as large resulted up to six months in no evidence cancer, and even then it wasn't certain.

The discovery also does away with research, Dr. Bau Hoi said, established 3-4-5-10 dibenzpyrene as the most dangerous cancer producer ever known. Long at the end of the list was 3-4 dimethylbenzanthracene, and found in the same smoke.

The chemicals associated with the cause of the substance explain to chemists at just which point methyl is attached to the pyrene base in the carbon compound.

Dr. Bau Hoi was born in the imperial Viet Nam capital of Hue, distinguished himself in school at Hanoi and was sent here to continue his studies.

During the German occupation of France he worked with the resistance, and devised a capsule of inactive tuberculosis germs which could be swallowed by Frenchmen deported to German work camps. It did not give departees tuberculosis, but would show up as "positive" in laboratory tests. Hundreds were released from the camps through this trick.

Yemenis Chew the Kat, Pay Taxes And Let Wise Slaves Run Things

By [illegible]
(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

ADEN, Feb. 3—Emerging from the closed kingdom of Yemen into the comparatively free air of this British colony, one is tempted to continue Yemen as a distressingly illiberal place, where slavery still is sanctioned, where most of the adult male population is addicted to a narcotic called kat and where the ruler resembles a stout Metropolitan Opera basso made up as Mephistopheles.

True, there still are slaves in Yemen. Probably 30 per cent of the men chew kat leaves. The Imam frightens everyone but children; most children are drawn to orgas.

But actually Yemen is not so bad. The Yemenis look healthier than the other natives of the Arabian Peninsula and carry themselves with more dignity. Generally their faces are alert with intelligence. They seem friendly but skeptical.

No figures on slaves are available. But the few foreigners resident in Yemen say the number is small. The buying and selling of slaves is reported to have ceased 20 years ago, when the sources of supply dried up.

There would seem to be some basis for Yemeni protestations that the status of the slaves is almost enviable.

Certainly they could hardly be worse off than the peasant and akhdam (servant) classes. They are free of the crushing tax burden imposed on peasants, who must surrender up to 70 per cent of the value of their crops to the district amil (agent). There are taxes also on beehives, cows, goats and camels.

The slaves must be housed, fed and clothed. Some, being smarter than their owners, have been elevated to positions of trust and actually run family estates and businesses.

The Imam Ahmed retains slaves in his palaces. Among them is his trusted bodyguard, an aged black warrior named Samson, who once saved the king from assassination. The Imam's brother, the late Crown Prince Whabi, who was drowned in the Red Sea, freed his personal slaves and set them up on farms on the hot, dusty coastal plain known as the Tihama.

WOODY SHRUB

The kat situation is less edifying. This woody shrub grows to a height of about 10 feet. Sprigs of young leaves six to eight inches long are picked in the early morning and are wrapped in grass to be kept fresh. In the afternoon, Yemenis gather in groups to strip off the kat leaves and roll them into quids that are chewed for an hour or two.

The juice contains alkaloids that act as a stimulant on the brain. Its effect is something like that produced by Marijuana.

This national pastime not only makes Yeminis slothful, but reduces the acreage available for coffee cultivation. Kat grows in the upland areas most suitable for coffee bushes. Many Yeminis would prefer to raise kat rather than coffee.

There is an old Yemini saying that "one can go several days without food but not a single day without kat."

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Beheading is the capital punishment of Yemen, but this is usually limited to persons accused of trying to kill the imam. Males accused of adultery may be stoned to death. Debtors are liable to be chained and fettered. Persons may be clapped in prison and kept there indefinitely without trial.

Suqs, or market places, are curfewed at sunset. The police, armed with stout clubs, blow whistles just before sundown and within 10 minutes shops are shuttered and streets deserted. Theft is quite rare.

Flood-Ravaged Virginia Mines Greet Sun, But Face A Long Siege of Unemployment

GRUNDY, Va., Feb. 3 (UP)—The flood-ravaged coal mining region of Southwest Virginia welcomed sunny skies today but it may be months before the area's major industry can go back into production.

Lee Gilbert, news director of radio station WHEE in Martinsville, Va., told United Press the flood damage has put the area's coal mines out of commission.

Gilbert said, "There are about 10,000 coal miners in this area—and about 90 per cent of them are out of work, and will be for several months.

"The mines are badly damaged. Everything except the loading docks has been knocked out in most places. There are about 800 small - truck mines, privately owned, in this area, and 90 per cent of them have had to cease operations.

"These people will have to depend almost solely on federal, state and United Mine Workers Union aid if they are to get out from under."

Gilbert said a sub-district supervisor of the U. S. Bureau of Mines at Norton, Va., has issued an appeal for all miners in southwestern Virginia, and eastern Kentucky to exercise "extreme caution in entering all mines."

Supervisor J. L. Gilley said electrical equipment has been inundated in many mines and workers face "electrocution or serious injury" unless they are careful.

Nearly all roads and rail lines leading into Grundy have been knocked out or undermined by the floodwaters. Many bridges are out

The Red Cross is going to be here on a sort of permanent basis for months to come, Gilbert said.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery
Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and varified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H.* Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

The Kid and Casey

Needing fuzzy-faced Ed Mathews was a favorite pastime of the late Hugh Casey and Art Fowler when the colorful 1950 Atlanta Crackers were rollicking to a pennant.

But Casey, a grizzly veteran of major league competition, wasn't kidding when he often said that the kid can be the greatest. He used to point to Mathews and say, "There's the guy who may some day break Babe Ruth's record." And he got plenty of support from Southern Association fans, bewitched by the tremendous power of the 18-year-old Cracker slugger.

Outlar

I thought about Casey Sunday while thumbing through some old baseball magazines. On the cover of a 1954 issue was a picture of Mathews. Inside was a story by Roscoe McGowen, veteran New York Times baseball writer. The title was "Ruth vs. Mathews."

On the second page there was a list of Ruth's record 60 homers in 1927. The Mathews' space was blank. The editors had prepared a column for fans to fill in Mathews' homers during the year. They thought that 1954 would be the season that Mathews would challenge the Ruth record. Mathews had whaled 47 homers during a sensational sophomore campaign the previous year, but his output dipped to 40 in '54.

Of late there have been no stories comparing Mathews to Ruth. In fact, they haven't been comparing Mathews to Mickey Mantle.

But Milwaukee brass and fans are hoping that 1957 will be the banner year for Mathews. He came on strong down the stretch after a slow start last season, and finished with 37 homers and 95 RBI.

They Predicted Mathews Would Cash In

Next season will be Mathews' sixth in the big time, which brings to mind another Casey statement. The former Dodger, who made a career of studying hitters, predicted that it would take Mathews five or six years to reach his peak in the majors.

Fowler, who always had great admiration for a buck, used to ponder away hours in club cars figuring how much money Mathews would make.

"I just wish I could swing a bat like you and had my brains."

THE CRACKER KID WHO COULDN'T MISS
Ed Mathews, Then 18, Had Experts In His Corner

Mathews is still able to count it, but his income is among the top ten in baseball. His salary is near the $40,000 level, with a steady flow of cash from endorsements.

I used to get a kick out of standing by the batting cage on the nights that Fowler was to pitch. He'd tell the other Crackers to get out of the way and let Mathews swing. "I'm pitching," Art would say, "and I want Ed to knock in as many runs as he'll hit in."

At that stage of the game, only Mathews' second as a pro, he was what is commonly referred to in the trade as a "butcher" at third base. He caught more balls with his chest in 1950 than he did with a glove. Twice he played hot hops into a broken nose. They say now, however, that Mathews has developed into a better-than-average third baseman.

Plenty of Space in the Record Book

Fowler and Mathews are now on opposite sides of the major league fence. Art, ready to start his fourth season as a pitcher with Cincinnati, claims he doesn't have too much trouble with Mathews. Ed reports that there isn't a pitcher in the league he'd rather bat against than Fowler.

Seven members of the 1950 Atlanta champs graduated to the majors for one or more seasons. But Mathews, Fowler and Don Liddle, a pitcher with the St. Louis Cards, are the only representatives still in the big time.

Frankly, Mathews as a major leaguer has baffled me, on and off the diamond. When he powered 47 homers and drove in 135 runs in '53, I thought that perhaps Casey was right. Mathews was going to be the greatest.

As a rookie in Atlanta, he was easy to get along with, one of the most pleasant youngsters you'd care to encounter. Various editions in the spring now say he's tough to interview, and he has been involved in a series of rhubarbs along the way. There was the night in Milwaukee when he refused to appear at home plate to receive an award. There was a fight in Chicago, and other squabbles.

Close friends now say Mathews has finally matured. Maybe 1957 will be his year. Certainly it's the year in Milwaukee. Disappointed over last season's late-season flop, disgruntled Brave fans won't take anything less than first for an answer.

If Mathews' bat starts booming in April, it could prove the pennant tonic the Braves need.

Tide's Injured Leave for Home

Alabama plays Vanderbilt there Monday night.

Hubbard, a sharpshooting guard who was nationally minded in the Tide's 87-67 stalemating at the hands of Georgia Tech Saturday night, and first string forward Jim Bugg returned to Tuscaloosa.

Dr. Gene Lambert, Alabama coach, explained their return: "We feel they will be able to get better and faster medical attention by being at home."

UCLA NOTE WARNS COACHES: REPORT VIOLATIONS, OR ELSE

PASADENA, Calif., Feb. 3 (AP)—The Associated Press learned today that UCLA's chancellor has sent confidential letters to the football, basketball and track coaches stating they "will be subject to immediate dismissal" should they become aware in the future of coaches giving aid to athletes but fail to "promptly report" it.

UCLA, winner of the 1956 Pacific Coast Conference gridiron title, was dealt stiff penalties last year—including being banned for three years from the Rose Bowl—for off-campus under-the-table money aid to athletes.

Bob Hammond, sports editor of the Associated Press-News, said in today's article he got possession of a "family matter" letter sent by Chancellor Raymond B. Allen to football head coach Red Sanders, basketball head coach John Wooden, track coach Dicky Drake and five assistant coaches.

". . . I am aware, as you are, that you have known for a period of time that off-campus aid was actually not in the form of off-campus jobs but instead that the program of aid operated by the Young Men's Club of Westwood was changed from actual jobs at some point and a financial aid gift program was substituted. This, I know, was no responsibility of yours but the moment that you became aware of this changed pattern of support it was your obligation to report this fact to the director of athletics.

"As to the future, I know that with this experience behind us you will be diligent to see to it that such institutional patterns are fully accepted with and enhanced as much pulsation effect the athletic program.

"In the event that you become aware of booster or alumni activities which are outside the spirit of the conference code, you will promptly report such violations to Director (Wilbur) Johns. Should at any time violations come to the attention of Director Johns or myself which indicated weaknesses or lack of diligence on your part, you will be subject to immediate dismissal."

Contacted today, Chancellor Allen declined to discuss the letter, saying it was "entirely an internal matter."

Casper Captures Phoenix

Middlecoff 2nd With Souchak

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 3 (AP)—California's Billy Casper Jr., a professional for only 30 months, staved off the threat of three seasoned tournament players today to win the $15,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament.

With Cary Middlecoff, the reigning U.S. Open champion; Lloyd Mangrum, a former winner of the National crown, and seasoned Mike Souchak, who has won more than his share of the big ones, breathing down his neck, the 25-year-old pro from Bonita, Calif., shot a final round three-under-par 67.

This gave Casper a 72-hole score of 271, nine strokes under par and with it the $2,000 top money.

Middlecoff shot a 69 and Souchak a 67 to tie at 274 for the runnerup purses.

A SOPHISTICATED LEAGUE

By AL THOMY

This old gang at Kentucky is breaking up that traffic jam at the head of the Southeastern Conference, but those young recruits in the family circle are the talk of the grandstands.

Not that the pretends to be surprised by the sudden exit of those Wildcats from Lexington, who [illegible] promoted at least an even chuckle of heartbreak in others over the finish line.

Two weeks ago Adolph Rupp and his Kentucky [illegible] were kicked in contact sport the league, and [illegible] seven days later, the Wildcats (7-1) [illegible] games ahead of the former [illegible], Auburn (5-2) and Tulane (5-2). During [illegible] stretch, Kentucky defeated Georgia Tech, Georgia and Florida.

Meanwhile, Auburn and Tulane were splitting a brace of games. The championship brakes were applied on the two Saturday nights. The Plainsmen were rudely stopped, 53-78, by Vanderbilt, and Mississippi State shamed the Green Wave, 85-72.

Since the SEC is considered a "home court" league, Kentucky finds a heartening sign in its remaining six conference games. After meeting Ole Miss at Memphis and Mississippi State at Starkville, the Cats end up with four home games against Vanderbilt, Alabama, Auburn and Tennessee.

Charlie Wolfe — Joe DePaul — Harold Pace — Bailey Howell — Johnny Cox — Cliff Wells

Cliff Wells' Green Wave also have an enticing finale, playing Alabama and Auburn away and Georgia Tech, Vandy, Mississippi State, Ole Miss and LSU at home.

At Auburn, Joel Eaves faces the longest climb to the point of contention. Five of his seven remaining games are on the road. LSU and Tulane visit the Plains, but the rest are at Tech, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky and Montgomery (against Alabama).

Now for the young recruits. Many SEC coaches cannot recall a segment of the past that has produced such a great sophomoric voice as the current season. The youngsters are ruling the roost. Witness the past week, for example.

Bailey Howell, a 6-6 Mississippi State forward, and a sophomore, was the man who bounced Tulane out of the coleadership Saturday night. He scored 26 points, picked out 22 rebounds. Earlier in the week he got 32 rebounds. His seasonal total now is 302, an all-time Maroon record. Howell had to be good since the Maroon point-maker, Jim Ashmore, was held to 19 in each game.

Kentucky soph Johnny Cox was instrumental in the week's success. He dunked 38 against Florida, and continually wrecked Tech and Georgia defensive plans. Auburn's Rex Frederick, Henry Hart and Jimmy Lee ran through Florida and stood out in the losing game at Vanderbilt.

Center Gene Tormohlen and guard Don Bingham, both sophs, got the first SEC victory for Tennessee, and in the same game Georgia found a new scoring leader in Decatur's Joe DeFoor, who hit 17, and a supporting star in Sonny Poss, who had 18. Tormohlen fired 19, Bingham 12.

Don Hinton, the center, and Jim Henry, a slippery guard, contributed 25 points in Vanderbilt's decision over Auburn. Henry recently broke into the starting five.

All of which leads up to Georgia Tech's sensational pair of Bud Blemker and Terry Randall, who combined for 58 points against Alabama Saturday. Randall made an unbelieveable 76 per cent of his field shots, and Blemker hit 60.

"Give me an all-sophomore team of Cox, Howell, Frederick and Randall and Blemker and I could beat any all-senior team in the league," says Georgia Tech's Whack Hyder.

And who could say he couldn't?

TECH

Vandy great "was terrific" and they "defensed us well, but we made lots of mistakes." He was pleased with the play of Henry Hart and Captain Henry Sturkie.

Hart, Jimmy Lee and Rex Frederick are the sophomores with whom Auburn hopes to counteract Blemker and Randall.

"Our boys looked tired today," Eaves continued. "We had to press 'em to try to catch up at the end. The second game on a road trip is always tough. Either you're tired and don't play well or loose enough to play all right."

Auburn stands 5-2, second in the SEC, with the road to look forward to, and Tech has a 4-4 record and mostly home ahead of it.

It should be a dilly. And the Tech-Auburn freshman preliminary game should be well worth the folks getting out at 6 o'clock to see.

Wilt, Kansas Mates Avenge Cyclone Loss

Chamberlain Held to 19 But Shines As Rebounder

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Kansas has shown again that lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place, even on a basketball court—particularly when you have 7-foot Wilt Chamberlain grabbing off the bolts before they do any damage.

Chamberlain and his Jayhawk teammates were able to stave off Iowa State the first time the Cyclones threatened their court supremacy in the Big Seven Conference Holiday Tournament.

However, the Cyclones, liking the defense that nearly did the job, came back three weeks ago and knocked the Kansans out of first place in the Associated Press ratings as they edged the Jayhawks 39-37 with the mighty Chamberlain checked with 12 points.

But last Saturday it was a different story when the second-ranked Jayhawks, now holding a 19-1 record, caught the Cyclones on their home court in their first game since the upset. They promptly squared conference accounts, winning 75-66. This time Chamberlain scored 19 points while being held to four field goals. But most important, he grabbed off 24 rebounds. And that was the story as three of the Bill's teammates also scored in double figures.

The victory probably kept Kansas, pacing the Big Seven with a 4-1 mark, from losing face in the National rankings. For, although unbeaten and top-ranked North Carolina was idle after making Western Carolina its 18th victim Wednesday, and third-rated Louisville was surprised by Memphis State, 61-78, other highly rated members of the top ten won handily.

Fifth rated UCLA toppled Oregon State for the second time in as many nights, 64-53, to raise its season's record to 15-1. The Uclans are unbeaten in the Pacific Coast Conference but are not eligible for post season competition.

Southern Methodist, No. 6, and besten only by Texas in the Southwest Conference, had little trouble in turning back Arkansas 69-55 for a 15-2 season performance.

However, Purdue's Boilermakers, not even ranked in the weekly poll, damaged Illinois' chances of remaining in the top ten and winning the Big Ten title. The Boilermakers beat the Illini, ranked seventh, 85-74. The triumph gave Purdue a season record of 12-2, best among the conference teams. In the Big Ten, the Boilermakers are 5-1, second only to 11th ranked Ohio State's 6-1.

One of the longest going winning streaks was broken when little St. Peters of New Jersey lost to Moravian 81-71 after running up a string of 19 triumphs over two seasons. On the other side of the picture, DePaul snapped a seven-game losing streak by beating St. Louis 97-95.

Patty Berg's 210 Equals World Record

HAVANA, Feb. 3 (AP)—Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., tied her own world record in winning the Havana Biltmore 54-hole Women's Invitational Best Ball golf tournament today with a six-under-par 210.

Patty shot a brilliant three-under-par 69 to go with earlier rounds of 68 and 73, and win the $800 first prize. She first set the record at Richmond, Calif., in 1952.

Each pro played the first 18 holes alone and teamed with three local amateurs over the remaining 36 holes yesterday and today.

The $515 second prize went to Betty Dodd of Louisville, Ky., who finished with a 72 for a 213 total. Betty opened with a 73 in the first round and collected a 68 yesterday.

Mickey Wright of San Diego, Calif., wound up with a 214 to win the $320 third prize. Last year's winner, Louise Suggs of Sea Island, Ga., tied for fourth at 217 with Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., and Willi Smith of Orange, Tex. The trio received $274.50 each.

Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., and Marilyn Smith of Wichita, Kans., tied for fifth place with 218 and each won $228.50.

Bulldog Sophs Continue To Impress in 'Game' Drill

By BAX BROOKINS
Sports Editor, The Constitution

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 3—The first game-type scrimmage of the spring football drills Saturday gave substance to a supposition that has been lurking around Ag Hill since last fall.

The supposition, held by many observers of the Bulldogs, is that Charlie Britt and Don Soberdash are among the choicest of the 1957 edition of Wally Butts' football squad.

Both of the sophomores-to-be spelled out in the first half of Saturday's workout, and on the strength of their performances stand all indications of playing close to the scrimmage from now on, barring injury or a reversal of form.

Soberdash, the 5-11, 185-pound right halfback from Dunbar, Pa., carried the ball 10 times for a total of 70 yards, most of it right through the roughest kind of territory, and caught three passes for 38 yards and a touchdown. Only on one attempted rush did he lose ground, and his longest run of the day was an 18-yard off-tackle play.

Before he was shaken up early in his second appearance at quarterback, Britt carried five times for 27 yards and completed three of five passes for 46 yards and a touchdown. The touchdown pass was for 25 yards, the scoring strike completed to Soberdash.

Tommy Lewis, the second of the splendid kid quarterbacks, was somewhat less effective in his passing, completing four of 15 for 52 yards. But he picked up 30 yards on two carries, and was a wizard in his sleight-of-hand tricks in handling and bootlegging the ball.

Linemen noted for outstanding work were George Hunsa and Larry Lancaster at tackle. Hunsa was making his first appearance in a Georgia game scrimmage. He is a graduate of Hinds County Junior College in Mississippi, working at left tackle.

Lancaster, a graduate of College Park High School, showed much of the form that made him the outstanding lineman of the Georgia-Georgia Tech freshman game last fall.

Nick Bracco, B-team graduate, ripped off several runs and blocked well. The game's longest single play was a 35-yard pass from Charlie Byars, the southpaw from Griffin, to George Whitton who barely failed to go all the way, thanks to a shoe-string slap by Glen Stanley.

SEC PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Cox 'Hazardous' Touch Revives Kentuckians

But since Wah Wah Jones came down the pike to help Mr. Kennedy get the most from brain basketball has been a respectable bid guest in small sections in the Bluegrass state.

In these high school seasons, as any coach will tell you, are not always indicative of things to come. But the outstanding efforts exhibited by Cox in his first days apparently were only the prelude to greater performances as a collegian.

Take last week, for instance. Cox, sophomore Cox, shouldered his Kentucky team in its second-round revolt after the Southeastern Conference basketball holiday. He was instrumental in three league victories, earning The Constitution's SEC Player of the Week designation.

Cox bagged 24 points and snared 16 rebounds as the Wildcats passed their toughest test last week. Auburn Georgia Tech proved the victim, 76-65. He followed that with 23 points and nine rebounds in the drubbing of Georgia, and wound up the week by supplying 28 decisive points as the Cats clawed Florida.

Seventy-two points, lots of rebounds and slick team play are about as cloth as even Baron Adolph Rupp, one of the game's most demanding drill-masters, could demand.

The obvious value of Cox to Kentucky's basketball future became apparent last year when he scored 308 points, averaged 22.0 points per game, cashed in 82.9 per cent of his field goal attempts and nabbed 139 rebounds.

When all-star candidate Vernon Hatton was shunted to the sidelines by appendicitis in December, it became apparent that the freshman sensation would have to repeat as a sophomore if Kentucky was to fulfill its expectations.

He played for Kentucky's Parrott High, and while Cox took them the school took up in the week. He did his job so well he found large blocks of time allotted to his teammates when they had the ball. Opponents usually found Cox alone. Parrott was champion and he was All-State.

Cox is shorted, particularly on the boards, by his lanky, basketballical appearance. But, friend, he's tough at rebounding, and yields to none when it comes to firing a one-hander from the corner.

He is 20 years old, has two more seasons of eligibility and, no doubt, will be responsible for numerous gray hairs among the enemy coaching ranks. As the Baron said, he's got that touch. —LOGUE.

Roy Roberts Boosts 3-AAA Scoring Lead

Northside Star Ups Mark With 47-Point Weekend

By WALTER GUTHMANN

The big redhead went on his second biggest scoring binge of the season over the weekend, dumping in 47 points, to boost his scoring average to 26.6 points per game.

Roberts, whose indestructible shooting gives commendably of the title-contender Northsiders every ah at points on the Tigers hoopers 67-Saints in a Friday night venture, then dished out Saturday night against Brunswick. He has now hit 20 or more points in five of the last six games and missed by only two in the other.

Only one man fell from the top 10 after the weekend firing had quieted. North Fulton's Jim Phillips, eighth last week, could total only 13 points in two games and fell to 14th spot. Morris Mitchell, Murphy's sophomore center, moved into the No. 10 position.

Jerry Cole of West Fulton held the No. 2 spot but Brown's Harry Stephens fell from third to fifth in the standings. Murphy's Milton McRae continued his steady scoring habits and moved up from No. 10 to No. 7.

Murphy is the only team with more than one player in the top 10 with McRae and Mitchell on the list, but Brown has three men in the first 12. Stephens is No. 5 with Buddy Scott 11th and Allen Johnson 12th.

Both Brown and Murphy have all five starters listed in the scoring leaders. Brown's 6-3 center, James Milton, completed the quintet this week as he raised his average to 8.4 a game. Bob Crutchfield, 6-5 forward, joined his four teammates as he totaled 34 points in two games to show an 8.5 mark.

YOUR BUYING HABITS depend on your age.

Retailers have adult "customers" pegged in four age-groups. Automotive Retailer recently issued a list of typical questions asked by persons in the different age brackets—applicable not only to cars but to most any other item for sale.

Age 21-35: Is it flattering, good-looking, socially important? Does it bolster youthful ego, add prestige, bedazzle friends and neighbors? Imply success? Never mind the price tag—how low are the monthly payments?

Age 36-50: Is it functional? Time or labor saving? Is its acquisition more important than another contemplated purchase? Can it be fitted into an already strained family budget? What are the carrying charges, expressed in true interest rate?

Age 51-56: Will it wear? Is it a quality product? Is it fairly priced and does its usefulness justify its cost? Will it make retirement years more pleasant?

Age 66-100: Is it comfortable? Is it really necessary or important anymore? What will its purchase do to limited savings? Never mind the terms. Will an interest-bearing bond have to be sold to pay for it?

RAINY DAY PEACH—Martha Ann Stephens, pretty first-time visitor to Atlanta, was using a copy of The Constitution for an umbrella when Photographer Ken Patterson found her dodging showers on Forsyth street the other afternoon.

Two gray days in a row "surprised" the trim little brunette. "I thought the sun shone here almost as much as it does at home in Lake City, Fla.," she declared.

Martha Ann, a University of Alabama freshman, spent a long weekend with June Weede of Avondale Estates, who's also attending the university at Tuscaloosa. Both girls are home economics majors.

Jan Welles To Sing at Steak Ranch

An Atlanta girl who has achieved considerable prominence as a singer since her appearance on the Arthur Godfrey show last year is headlining a good show at the Steak Ranch this week.

She's Jan Welles, who was named "The Stardust Girl" by Godfrey when she won his Talent Scouts award and later appeared for a month on his regular TV and radio shows.

Miss Welles is a pretty girl and her songs are as refreshing as a spring rain. Her style is similar to Julie London's in that she possesses that smooth, seductive quality which few vocalists can imitate.

She's not alone at the Steak Ranch. Good company is afforded by Cliff Winehill, Dean Martin's uncle who was dancing in vaudeville before Dean was taken off Pablum, and Barr and Estes, a comedy dance act, which is very good. Larry Ward plays for shows and dancing.—PAUL JONES.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 3 (AP)—The newspaper Al Shaab announced today the results of a poll of its readers on President Eisenhower's Middle East doctrine: Three for it and 68,342 against it. Those who voted yes are identified as two lawyers and a university student.

Saud Sees Hope For Mideast Peace

from the President himself and from Mr. Dulles.

Saudi officials however, continued to refrain from outright endorsement of the President's proposals, which has been sharply criticized in Cairo and rejected outright in Damascus. Before sailing for the United States, Saud met President Nasser of Egypt, Premier Sabri Elassali of Syria and King Hussein of Jordan in Cairo.

He agreed at that time to speak in Washington for the four nations, which are considered the "neutralist" bloc of the Middle East.

Negotiations here between aides of King Saud and U.S. officials have settled down to a quiet haggle over the amount of arms the United States will sell to Saudi Arabia.

The United States will agree to sell the arms, including some jets and tanks, in exchange for a five-year extension of the Dharan base agreement, which expired in June.

A joint statement by President Eisenhower and Saud outlining common objectives in the Middle East is expected Friday, at the end of the King's visit in Washington. Whether it would include any form of Saudi Arabian endorsement of the projected "Eisenhower doctrine" or go into any of the specifics of the arms and base agreements remained uncertain tonight.

U.S. officials said the Saudis now were asking for "much less" than the 250 million dollars worth of arms over five years that was reported to have been their opening bargaining proposal.

Tonight King Saud attended a dinner given in his honor by the Arabian American Oil Company, the combination of United States oil interests that buys Saudi Arabia's oil.

Saud was reported today to have made it clear to Eisenhower from the outset that Saudi Arabia wanted arms from the United States. The point of the emphasis, as gratified United States officials explained, was that he would not use the familiar threat of turning to the Soviet Union in order to exact concessions from the United States.

Bird Club Says Thanks For Use of Park Here

The Atlanta Bird Club has expressed its thanks publicly to Park Commissioner George I. Simons and the Atlanta Park Department for having released to the club a portion of Piedmont Park.

Nicaraguans Vote; Somoza To Be Elected

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 3 (UP)—Nicaraguans voted today for a new president and congress. the election of U.S.-educated Luis A. Somoza, 35, son of assassinated President Anastasio Somoza, was a foregone conclusion.

Edmundo Amador, Conservative party presidential candidate, frankly admitted he had no hopes for victory. "Ours is a new party, still without too many roots among the people," he said. He added he hoped the party would be able to take "constructive criticism from congress."

The elections were the first in which Nicaraguan women were permitted to vote and early reports indicated a heavy turnout. It was expected most of the 619,063 registered voters would cast ballots.

In addition to the presidency, seats in both upper and lower houses of congress were at stake.

THE MIGHTY CHRYSLER

Most glamorous car in a generation

It makes 'em Stare—anywhere!

You see it any place . . . and you want to look at it. There's a pride and a prance to it that gives you a lift, makes you feel alive and vital. But the real tingle is driving it!

There it is . . . as long and low and purposeful as a gleaming jet, with its long rakish fenders streaming back and up like battle flags. This is the dynamic new look of 1957 motoring, and we can't help it if others aren't there yet. Give 'em time—we always have.

The important thing to know is that every flowing "go" line in this 1957 Chrysler has a purpose. That low-slung body and upswept tail were engineered for a new kind of road stability. They are the architectural results of Chrysler's Torsion-Aire ride, the all-new suspension that gives you sports car cornering with the comfort of an ocean liner.

Front coil springs have been completely eliminated. There's up to 56% more glass area to enhance its roomy feel. The wide, low grille features hooded dual headlights. And if you want to find out what "go" really is, wait till you boss its up-to-325 horsepower engine and pushbutton Torque-Flite transmission. The real tingle is waiting for you. Come in and see us . . . or just telephone. We'll gladly arrange a demonstration.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Less than one per cent of New York City's two million families produce 75 per cent of the city's juvenile delinquents, Domestic Relations Court Justice Nathan Kaplan said today.

Ralph W. Whelan, executive director of the City Youth Board, commenting on Kaplan's statement, said:

"These families, which represent the core of the delinquency problem in New York City, are characterized by alcoholism, drug addiction, physical and mental illness, broken homes, neglect and a host of related problems."

'Accept Jesus' As a Term Is Explained

ANSWER: It means not only to accept His teaching and His example; it means to accept Him for what He claimed to be and is: the Savior of the world.

Sir Francis Simpson, the discoverer of the anesthetic properties of chloroform and one of the most prominent scientists of his generation, was asked by a friend to name the most wonderful discovery he had ever made, and quickly came his reply, "The greatest discovery I ever made was the discovery that I had a Savior."

Most everyone accepts Christ as a great teacher, or a great prophet, or a great humanitarian. But we never really accept Him until we claim Him as our Savior.

The Bible says, "As many as received Him, to them gave He the power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name." This means more than mental assent, more than accepting Him as a fact of history. It means we accept Him as God's substitute for our sins, our living Lord. Only those who have done this experience the miracle of the New Birth and have the assurance they are truly children of God through faith in Him.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠ K Q 10 7 6 ♥ 9 7 ♦ A Q 5 ♣ K 9 7

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 hearts	Pass

A.—While all the suits are stopped a rebid of two no trump is not recommended because the hand is not strong enough to justify such action. Very little over a minimum is held and a rebid of two spades does justice to the holding. To qualify as a sound rebid of two no trump, the opening hand must have at least 18 high card points.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠ K J 10 ♥ Q J 10 9 8 ♦ A 10 8 ♣ A 2 4

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 heart	Pass	2 hearts	?

What do you bid?

A.—Nothing. You might as well accept a short game. You have no reason to feel confident that you can make three at anything with this unattractive distribution and a double by you would oblige partner to bid.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠ A Q 8 6 4 ♥ 7 3 ♦ Q 6 ♣ A K 7 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—After partner's previous pass his jump to two no trump is not forcing, but there is no doubt that we wish nevertheless to proceed to game. However, an effort should be made to find the safest contract. The suggested call is a bid of three clubs. If partner returns to three spades we shall go on to four. If he persists in three no trump, then surely that will be the best final contract.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠ 7 3 ♥ K J 9 7 5 3 ♦ K 4 ♣ 7 4 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
2 no trump	Pass	?

What do you bid?

A.—This hand stands a very good chance of producing five or six tricks for partner and consequently is on the verge of a slam. The best way to indicate such a holding is by a big jump in hearts. Our own preference is for five hearts. However, the situation may be handled adequately by first responding with three hearts, intending to make a leap beyond game on the next round.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠ K J 9 8 4 ♥ K 3 ♦ A Q 7 4 3 2 ♣ [illegible]

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 heart	Pass
1 spade	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass

What do you bid?

A.—Pass. You have already done your full duty by this hand and should not be unduly influenced by the distributional features which you have already described. Your hand is quite minimum as to high cards and you may assume that partner is on guard that you may have a 6-3 distribution. His response of one heart has done nothing to improve your hand and any slam suggestion should come from him if there is to be a sound play for it.

Q. 6—You are South and have 60 part score:
♠ 7 6 2 ♥ 2 ♦ Q 10 9 8 3 2 ♣ 7 6 3 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 heart	Pass	?

What do you bid?

A.—Call me timid if you choose but my vote is for a pass. It is my practice to go to great limits to keep the opening side from an advanced part score in hand, but this is going too far. Too frequently have complications set in by virtue of South's "pushing" bids of one no trump in situations such as this. Partner has strained the bidding and carries on the fight against the enemy competition to his great disaster. One cannot expect always to be right in these situations, but I am persuaded that the pass will be wiser in most cases.

♠ 3—Partner opens with one club and you hold:
♠ Q J 7 4 ♥ J 6 3 ♦ K 7 4 3 ♣ 9 5

What is your response?

A.—The choice has between two clubs and one diamond, with our vote going to the latter. This is a common game response and is calculated to make the opener's rebid as easy as possible. If he has a non-shiny heart or spade suit he may show it at the level of one, but if he has a rebid for partner to show the heart suit at the lowest level available, moreover, response would be one no trump. This would make it impossible for partner to rebid at the level of two, which he might wish doing so.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Many Women Afflicted by 'Tired Arm'

By M. D. in THE ARTHRITIS [illegible]

The tired arm syndrome is one of the latest medical conditions to be described. According to Dr. Frank H. Ford of Johns Hopkins University, the disorder has developed among women, particularly those who do their own housework.

Most victims complain of an aching or throbbing pain in the upper arm, resembling a toothache. Discomfort usually develops at night and is severe enough to awaken the sufferer from sleep.

Changing position or massaging the arm seldom helps; more relief is obtained by getting out of bed and walking the floor. Pain recurs, however, on returning to bed.

Meanwhile, the hand feels numb and by morning is so stiff it won't feel as if it belong [illegible]. The victim is not bothered during the day except when she holds or grasps an object with a strong grip. Numbness reappears, which again is relieved by rest and massage.

The right arm is affected in the right handed, and the left arm in the southpaw. Now and then both sides are involved but the dominant arm is affected most.

Dr. Ford has seen a number of these patients and has not been able to uncover the original underlying cause. There is no pressure on nerves and no evidence of weakness or wasting of muscles. Circulation is good and neither neuritis nor arthritis can be detected along the involved arm.

He concluded that the disorder is due to excessive muscular exertion and strain. Some patients had had their minds during the war and were forced to do all the household chores. Others worked continually because of an obsession against dirt.

This physician believes the condition may be related to writer's cramp, restless leg, or skin spinal. The latter affects athletes on the track team who overexert early in the season. The muscles most affected are those involved in the skin line between pectoral and trapezius.

The tired arm syndrome, he speculates, is a cruel period of time [illegible] that many women are unable to cooperate because they insist upon doing their housework, or they have to earn a living in this way. The alternative is a medicine that helps them to sleep and keeps them somewhat lazy during the day.

9:35 Across the street, into the store, and down to business! First, to the 2nd floor for special values in towels and linens.

10:30 Of course, Johnny wears out shoes just as any other boy. However, his new ones from Young Atlantan Shoes will last and last!

11:30 And Mom is equally thrilled with the Fashionable Third, where she finds the very coat, hat and shoes she wants for Spring.

12:00 On to the Sixth Floor Book Shop for a few selections from the host of books designed to delight every conceivable interest!

12:30 Johnny's eyes bothering him? Well, a quick but thorough examination on the Sixth Floor determines whether he needs glasses.

1:00 A busy morning makes for hearty appetites. What better way to satisfy them than a delicious luncheon in the Magnolia Room?

3:00 Across the Crystal Bridge to Rich's Store for Homes, to see "Ideas Unlimited," the home-furnishings show everyone's talking about.

3:45 One look at Rich's beautiful rooms, and I'm ready to redecorate my home now—let's stop by the Decorating Studio on the 5th floor.

5:30 And so, on home. But wait! The family doesn't forget to pick up the day's purchases at the Forsyth Street call stand. Now, home!

South's Society — New Orleans

Spirit of 'Gushing Oil' Seeps Into Social Core

(This article begins a three-part series on the changes in society in the South. The stories on Atlanta and Charleston will appear on Tuesday and Wednesday.)

By MELTON McLAURIN

In the South, society continues its most dramatic change with the loss of what is still called the Civil War. Perhaps the change has not stopped changing.

The frequent title of Margaret Mitchell's epochal novel did provide a handy memorable enumeration of what happened to a way of life identified in most Northern minds with white pillars, magnolias and spirited beauties in crinolines.

But that generalized image was itself deceptive. Southern cities have highly individual personalities. With time, their ways have tended to become even more specifically their own.

Disparate Changes

Here are the kinds of disparate changes that have affected three contrasting communities in the years since the far-reaching jolt of Lee's surrender:

1. New Orleans, its culture long sweetened by sugar and enriched by cotton, is giddy with oil as it prepares for Mardi Gras on March 5. A Texas millionaire was king of one of the lesser carnival balls in 1956. Two years later, his horse won the Louisiana Derby. Its name: Gushing Oil.

2. Atlanta, which, according to one resident, did not even known "southern" until the publication of "Gone With the Wind" in 1936, has suddenly gone class for "society." In January, 1956, many incredulous at the virtual impossibility of getting into the most exclusive club simply formed one of their own. Now it has a waiting list, too.

Golden Age

3. Charleston, fortified by memories of a golden age between the Revolution and the Civil War, long resisted any diminution of the rule of the St. Cecelia Society as absolute dictator of the debutante system. But at last it gave up. A girl may now make her bow in Charleston without going to the St. Cecelia Ball.

Here are details of the changing situation in New Orleans:

Seven years ago Sam E. Wilson Jr. of Corpus Christi, Tex., was named king of one of the secret carnival organizations called krewes. The carnival structure is still the very core of social life here, and it has year-round ramifications.

Carnival in New Orleans begins on Twelfth Night (Jan. 6) and reaches its culmination on Shrove Tuesday (Mardi Gras). Carnival was brought to New Orleans by its Latin settlers, who, as Roman Catholics, followed the tradition of feasting and merrymaking before the fast of Lent.

The group that honored Mr. Wilson was the Krewe of Adonis, a woman's organization only two years old at the time. Its tradition was to choose a king, just as the older and more fashionable groups chose queens. Among these old-line groups the tendency was to pooh-pooh both the Texan and his crown.

But on March 1, 1952, when one of his string of 14 thoroughbreds won the $20,000 Louisiana Derby at the Fair Grounds, the victory was popular. For Mr. Wilson had established himself as a generous and successful patron of racing—another manifestation of society in New Orleans.

Hospitality

Long famous for its plantation hospitality, its love of dancing and the glittering peak of its season on Mardi Gras, New Orleans now finds that gushing oil has tinged virtually everything it does. Louisiana is second in oil production to Texas.

Four new buildings based on oil have altered the city's skyline in the past five years.

Two hundred of the 270 shareholders in a new residential and country club development to be built across Lake Pontchartrain are "in oil." However, the leaders don't like to emphasize the percentage of Texans because of the fanfare on Louisiana.

At least half of the members of the Petroleum Club of New Orleans are Texans. Some old residents of Bayou Liberty insist that one Texan has been able to buy away most of their old servants. They say that by setting himself up as a sort of domestic corporation he can charge off the higher wages as tax-deductible expenses.

Oil Money, Oil Men

At the same time, old-line New Orleanians resist encroachment upon their prerogatives and their preserves. A Texan who wandered into the exclusive Boston Club (1841) and allowed that he "might care to join," soon learned the facts of life. (The interval from nomination to election is about seven years; the membership ceiling, originally 400, has risen only to 525.)

Moreover, although the carnival structure has expanded down the years so that there are now more than 60 balls, the most exclusive groups are, if anything, more exclusive than ever.

And the carnival system—despite aspects deplored even by some who "belong"—remains the closest thing to a criterion of society in New Orleans.

The krewes are private social organizations. The top balls cannot be attended by Jews, of whom there are about 10,000 in the city. (It is pointed out that Mardi Gras is a Christian observance.)

Among New Orleanians who will be out of town for this year's whole carnival period are Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Stern Sr. They recently made a record gift of $300,000 to the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra. Mrs. Stern is a daughter of the late Julius

Beige Tones Good For Accessories

Another very smart early spring accessory fashion color that may be bought now to wear through spring is one of the new lighter beiges in all the leather accessories: shoes, bags, gloves, belts.

There are two types, a very light, almost off-white color, called "gin fizz," and a lovely soft medium shade, known as "ash blonde."

I think the latter is the perfect color to wear with practically all light colors this spring. It not only spans most of the various beige shades, but complements all the new pastels as well.

Mrs. Cothran Is Married

At a quiet ceremony solemnized on Saturday afternoon in the church parlor of the Second Ponce de Leon Baptist Church, Mrs. James R. Cothran of Atlanta was married to Jesse C. Palmer of Waynesboro.

Dr. Monroe C. Swilley Jr. performed the ceremony in the presence of the bride's son, John M. Cothran of Atlanta, and Mr. Palmer's son and daughters, Jesse C. Palmer Jr., Mrs. W. A. Law of Waynesboro and Mrs. Roy Owen of Cedartown.

Miss Howell Is Married

Miss Mary Howell, daughter of Mrs. Edgar Howell and the late Mr. Howell of Crawfordville, became the bride of Ann G. Maynard Jr. at a Saturday afternoon ceremony solemnized at the First Baptist Church of Decatur.

Mr. Maynard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ann G. Maynard Sr. of Decatur.

Dr. Dick Hall Jr. performed the marital service in the presence of the immediate families.

Mr. Maynard and his bride will reside in Decatur.

Atlanta Coeds Joined the Crowds At Lectures of Leading Thinker

By ELIZABETH MORGAN

When one of the world's leading thinkers comes to town to lecture, you expect the college "brains" to gather 'round. When Dr. Paul Tillich—a real giant in the study of man's expression in philosophy, religion and art—arrived in Atlanta last week, coeds helped pack the audiences that listened to him.

Since 1955 Dr. Tillich has been university professor of philosophy at Harvard. The post, similar to the late Albert Einstein's status at Princeton, gives him the freedom to pursue and execute his studies in any way that he likes.

His lecture on religion and the arts Thursday at Agnes Scott stirred loud spontaneous applause and many questions. He condemned the analytical philosophers who try to take the emotions out of art. In his deep, rich, thickly accented voice he said, "You have the real world when you are with music and art."

And he added earnestly, "Don't accept people who try to reduce the Bible to scientific terms. Symbols and mysticism are the language of religion and there is no other language."

DEPLORES IMITATIONS

He called the arts the symbolic and sensual expression of man's spirit and pointed out that the symbols are equally true for religion. As an example he mentioned Bach's "The Passion According to St. Matthew," a reverent musical expression of Christ's suffering. Tying in art with religion he commented, "If you do not know what spirit in man is, you have no material to symbolize what spirit in God is."

He believes in the artistic expression of each age and deplores imitations of previous ages. (He censured the church architecture which copies such styles as Gothic and Baroque.) And he told the students, "If you are bored with testimonies of philosophy, art and history, look at the style of the period and realize that these are human beings as you are. What were they trying to express? Remember, their elements are in all of us."

Friday morning the 70-year-old scholar ate breakfast with some Scott coeds in the dining hall. He was pleased—his blue eyes turned deep and warm as he talked of the occasion—for "they seemed to know what I said last night. They asked good questions."

He sat in the parlor of the Anna Young Alumnae House and chatted with Joann Hathaway, a junior who wanted to know him.

FEARLESS AND HONEST

Fearless and honest in the expression of his ideas and feelings, Dr. Tillich in books and lectures hit hard at the rising Hitler regime. That put him on the Nazis' first list of unpopular Germans, and after teaching 14 years in German universities, he left his homeland in 1933.

At Emory he talked reverently of loneliness. In his idiomatic English he quoted from the Bible where God says, "It is not good that a man should be alone. I shall make for him a helper." And the gray-haired theologian explained that, though in the beginning man and woman had been one, now they became separate beings and longed for each other.

In his belief, both were given a "hidden, impenetrable center" that found communion with God only in solitude. Speaking with love and warmth, the doctor described the dual human desire to end this persistent loneliness, and once it is ended, to be lonely again. He added that sometimes humans find God together, and sometimes apart—in solitude.

"WAKE MOMENTS"

The powerful teacher continued, "Man needs moments in which he can find himself," and it is important in the pressures of civilization to find those moments. Said the doctor, "Nothing great can happen without solitude. One hour of solitude is worth many hours of learning how to become creative."

Under the sponsorship of the University Center in Georgia, Dr. Tillich's renown drew crowds also to hear his lectures, sermons, and lectures and seminars at the University of Georgia and Oglethorpe.

Atlantans Attended Washington, Lee Ball

When Washington and Lee's annual fabulous fancy dress ball got under way Friday night, Atlantans were much in evidence, with no less than three in the grand parade of costumed royalty.

The theme of the ball this year was Mozart's famed "Don Giovanni," and the setting was the National Theater in Prague on Oct. 29, 1787, premiere date of the opera. Guests were costumed as European notables who attended that memorable occasion nearly 170 years ago.

John H. Candler and Marcia Jane Brown of Atlanta were cast as Don Giovanni and Donna Elvira, principals of the opera.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD W. COURTS are basking in Arizona's sunny clime today. They left Saturday to spend two weeks at the Royal Palms Inn there.

AMONG PARTIES featuring the weekend calendar was that at which Mrs. A. Q. Smith was hostess yesterday at the cocktail hour in compliment to her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Jan R. Smith of Coral Gables, Fla. The Smiths and their small daughter, Judith Ann, arrived last week to be guests at Mrs. Smith's home on The Prado.

MRS. JAMES W. SPEAS leaves today for a visit to her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George W. McCarter, in Fresh Meadows, Long Island, N.Y.

DR. AND MRS. JEFF RICHARDSON returned yesterday after a week's vacation in Florida. They left Jan. 27 for Bradenton, to be guests of the Rev. and Mrs. Fred T. Kyle Jr., after which they were guests of those former Atlantans, Dr. and Mrs. LeRoy Childs, at their cottage at Coral Cove Fishing Camp on Islamorado Key for several days of bonefishing.

AT THE OPEN HOUSE at which Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Doran were hosts yesterday afternoon in compliment to their daughter, Jeanne, and her fiance, Louis M. Backe III of Philadelphia, the young couple's wedding date was announced as Saturday, May 4.

The ceremony will take place at nuptial mass at 11 o'clock at the Cathedral of Christ the King. Special guests at the party were Mr. Backe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Backe Jr. of Philadelphia, and the bride-elect's sister, Miss Margie Doran, who came from Marymount to spend the weekend with her parents.

BRIDE-ELECT MARGARET WILSON will be honor guest when Mrs. E. L. Hollingsworth entertains at tea on Saturday, Feb. 16, at her Blackland road residence.

Miss Wilson's sister, Mrs. John B. Frisiff, will arrive from Eureka, Calif., early in March and will give a trousseau-tea for the bride-to-be at the Wilson home on Peachtree-Dunwoody road. Miss Ellen Kinsey will be hostess at the bridesmaids' luncheon at her home on Peachtree drive, and the rehearsal dinner will be given at Plantation House by Mr. and Mrs. Ward W. Are of Batesburg, S.C., parents of Miss Wilson's fiance, Thomas L. Are.

Miss Wilson and Mr. Are will be married at 5 o'clock on Friday, March 15, at the Peachtree Road Presbyterian Church.

FOLLOWING THE CLOSING PERFORMANCE of the comedy hit, "Jenny Kissed Me," presented by the St. Thomas More Theater Guild, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chambers were hosts at supper at their home on Willow Lane, Decatur, in honor of 50 members of the guild.

Mrs. B. A. Moore Jr.

Miss Space Is Bride of Mr. Moore

SAVANNAH, Feb. 3—At an evening ceremony solemnized in Christ Church on Saturday evening, Miss Margaret Charbonnier Space, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian A. Space, became the bride of Benjamin Allston Moore Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Moore of Charleston, S.C.

The Right Rev. Albert Stuart officiated at the service which was followed by a small reception held at the Oglethorpe Hotel.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin and rose point lace. Her full-length veil of illusion was attached to a cap of rose point.

The bride was attended by Miss Elizabeth Collier Space as maid of honor. Her bridesmaids were Miss Ethel Green of Natchez, Miss.; Miss Caroline Lane of Lookout Mountain, Tenn.; Miss Elizabeth Stockton of Jacksonville; Mrs. Charles W. Rhangos of New York; Mrs. Lawrence M. Austin and Mrs. Archibald L. Morris of Savannah.

Benjamin H. R. Moore was his brother's best man. Groomsmen included the bride's brother, Julian B. Space, Frank Ford, William Hanahan, Rufus C. Barkley, Peter McGee, Harry Johnson, Archibald E. Baker of Charleston; John D. Corse of Charlottesville, Va.; George Darden of Virginia Beach, Va., and Lawrence M. Austin of Savannah.

After a Nassau honeymoon, the couple will live in Charleston where Mr. Moore will be associated with the law firm of Moore and Mouzon. He was graduated from Princeton and in January last month, he received his law degree from the University of Virginia.

Mrs. Moore, a 1955 Sweet Briar graduate, was presented to society here in 1953 and is a member of the Savannah Junior League.

16 for 4 Days And No License

The rain dripped off the trees, whispered in the gutters and made a singing noise as it ran into the sewer under the street outside. And in the house she sat hunched over on the sofa and tears—big, fat silver tears—poured out of her eyes and ran off the end of her freckled nose.

"What's the matter?" I cried, dropping rain coat and umbrella and pocketbook. "Are you hurt?"

She shook her head miserably.

"Are you sick? What's wrong?"

She gulped and brushed her eyes with the back of her hand, making great smears across her face.

"I'll tell you," she said. "I've been 16 years old for FOUR days—and I still haven't got my driver's license!"

I wanted to laugh, but in the face of such disaster, I couldn't. I wanted to make soothing noises about oh, well, you've got the rest of your life to drive a car—and it's not such a high privilege anyhow. But that wouldn't do either. When you've been counting the days until your 16th birthday for about two years, four extra, unallowed-for days of delay amount to a lifetime.

"I'm sorry," I said. "You know how it's been—something every afternoon. I haven't had time to take you to the State Patrol Headquarters."

"They're not open on Saturday and you've got to be in the building by 4 o'clock any other day or they won't take you!" she pointed out in tones of great tragedy.

"All right," I said, making one of those peace-at-any-price decisions. "I'll take you in the morning before school."

Then I picked up a murder mystery and headed for bed, hoping to pull the cover over my head and forget all the new anxiety, all the family squabbles, all the tensions that would immerse me with another teen-age driver in the family. But you know how it is, you cry peace and there is no peace.

She came with that little book the State Department of Public Safety puts out and sat on my feet and asked me questions. How much visibility must a public carrier have before stopping to unload or take on passengers on the highway? How many days do you have to report an accident to the director of public safety? How many feet does it take to stop a vehicle traveling at a speed of 30 miles an hour? (She called it "vee-hickle.")

"Look," I said, "I've got my driver's license. I've been driving by ear since I was 14 years old—and I can't worry about all that stuff now. It makes my head hurt."

"Mother!" she was shocked. "You mean you don't know the RULES?"

"Comes the time when I need a rule, I know it," I said with dignity, putting a book up before my face. "I've never had an accident or had to go to traffic court in my life. See if you can do as well."

She finally went to bed, clutching the Safety Department Bible to her heart and we did get up early and head out Confederate avenue. I stood around with a lot of other mothers, yawning and drinking vending machine coffee and praying she would pass. She hooked her loafered feet around the rung of a chair, scratched her head with her pen and labored over the written test. Then beaming proudly at a grade of 90, she went off with a trooper for the road test.

When she finally emerged, license in hand, she gave me her most radiant smile. "Would you like me to drop you off at the office?" she asked airily. And then when we were under way, quite seriously, "Mother, you really ought to study up on the rules. That's one of the dangers on the highway today—middle-aged drivers."

Try Finnish Gymnastics To Reduce

By IDA JEAN KAIN

To get a lift and banish the bulges, try exercising the Finnish way. Ten fair young ladies from the University of Helsinki in Finland have just terminated a three-month visit to our country. Here they toured American college campuses and demonstrated their Finnish gymnastic system.

As I watched them go through a master lesson with the physical education majors at George Washington University, I thought how wonderful it would be to pass along to you some of their beautiful body movements. Here is a trio with emphasis on extension and supple bending.

FINNISH STYLE

First, a triple stretch, Finnish style.

Standing, raise arms overhead. Now rise on toes, give an extra lift elongating the middle measurement, following through clear to fingertips as you stretch upwards.

ARMS MOVE UP

Follow by circling with both arms. The movement is to step to the side as both arms move up, around . . . again following the arm movement with an upstretch of complete extension.

Take a step to the right, arms circling to the right, looking upwards. Step to the left and circle arms to the left in a rhythmical, flowing movement, always bringing the entire body into the lifting action.

This willowy troupe exercised for the sheer joy of movement. Finnish women love gymnastics and carry on these exercises from the time they are little girls until old age. They tell me that in Finland, it is considered a sickness to be too fat!

South's Society—New Orleans

Spirit of 'Gushing Oil' in Society

Rosenwald of Chicago.

Historically, New Orleans had a golden age between 1830 and 1860. The first organized carnival procession took place here in 1838. The modern system dates to Feb. 24, 1857, just a century ago.

On that day, the Mistick Krewe of Comus made its first appearance. In the name of the spirit of revelry, Comus brought to bear an Anglo-Saxon sense of discipline and plan upon the loosely organized festival. Theretofore it had reflected predominantly Creole — that is, French-Spanish—attitudes.

Duchess Bowed

To this day, the Comus ball on Mardi Gras night remains the most exclusive single event on the city's calendar. The queen of Comus outranks the queen of carnival herself, who ritually calls at the former's court on the night of the ball. In 1950, the former King Edward VIII of England with his Duchess bowed to the king and queen of Comus.

Other top balls include those of the Knights of Momus, the Twelfth Night Revelers and the Krewe of Proteus.

In 1872, the idea of having a Rex as king of carnival developed. This involved a new approach. Down the years, two carnival demonstrations, one known simply as Rex and the other more recent one, as Hermes, have tended to become largely civic enterprises. Thus out-of-town visitors, uninvited to Comus or Momus, still have a carnival extravaganza to write home about.

With their guests, the male members of the established krewes probably total no more than 25,000 of the greater city's population of nearly 800,000. Yet the 60-odd balls and 18 parades now also include parties by most of the city's minorities, including the Negroes. Thus, despite the restrictive patterns, the carnival observance in one way or another seems to please more New Orleanians than it offends.

Pulling, Hauling

There is still a vast amount of pulling and hauling within each krewe as to whose daughter shall be queen.

But this may be a sign of the times: One girl, whose parents have a fine home in the Garden District and long years of association with an exclusive krewe, has written from college in New England that she is not interested in appearing as a debutante at its Mardi Gras ball. Traditionally, no debut in New Orleans is complete without such an appearance.

In other aspects of its social life, the city has been affected like other Southern communities. A hostess may apologize for lack of a cook—and invite you to Antoine's instead. This is a hardship most visitors manage to bear.

Antoine's and other famous restaurants in the French Quarter have seen the base of their clientele broaden widely. Meanwhile, Bourbon street since World War II has become like West 52nd street—with barkers added. It seems to be inhabited primarily by parking lots (one eight stories high) and strippers.

One Is Special

One parking lot is special, to the extent that it occupies the space on which the old French Opera House burned down in December, 1919. "The heart of the old French Quarter has stopped beating," the morning paper put it; and, in a cultural and artistic sense, it has never started up again.

Tulane University owns the land and will not release it save for the rebuilding of the music center. But an association with that goal has not prospered.

Thus one of the most revealing commentaries on the New Orleans social scene in 1957 came from a member of one of the most fasionable krewes. He said that the one way a Texan could buy in to New Orleans society was to rebuild the French Opera House.

WORDS SHOW THE WIT OF A MAN—BUT ACTIONS HIS MEANING

Colorcast of 'Mayerling' Promises To Be Sublime

By VIRGINIA VIDA
Special to The Constitution

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—Julius LaRosa once said: "I want to become a good singer before I become a bad actor."

The 21-year-old singer who has rarely been known for his modesty, will take the plunge Monday when he stars in the Matinee Theater's "Three Kids."

The critics—and several million folks who watch TV just for the fun of it—will be looking on. Critical appraisals are apt to be of the bare-knuckle variety.

Julius LaRosa

Oddly enough, the play in which LaRosa will appear is about a young man whose life is made miserable by his resemblance to—Julius LaRosa.

Critical appraisals of another sort will likely come as the result of another show, which promises to be sublime.

Audrey Hepburn and Mel Ferrer, two of the best players in the theater today, and Anatole Litvak, director par excellence, will pool their talents in a once-in-a-lifetime TV presentation of "Mayerling," to be colorcast on NBC-TV (Channel 2) at 8 p.m.

The import of this presentation hasn't fully been felt by either the industry or the viewing audience.

But the fact that a likeness of the Ferrers—Mr. and Mrs. in real life—appeared on the cover of one of the top picture books over the weekend would indicate that this is the type show which isn't done on video every week.

Miss Hepburn will portray Maria Vetsera, and Ferrer will portray Prince Rudolph of Austria, in a dramatization of the love story that rocked the continent in the 1880's.

In a way, Hal March will become a sacrificial goat on TV Monday night. The personable quizmaster will be starred in Studio One's play about a TV comic who is attempting a comeback in the nightclub circuit.

If you're interested in contrasts, switch to CBS-TV at 10.

Several years ago an actor with same stage experience auditioned for a minor role on ABC's "My True Story." On the strength of the audition report which indicated the performer showed great acting promise, he got the part and was awarded leading roles in subsequent broadcasts of the daytime dramatic series.

Kirk Douglas

This experience on radio early in his career helped launch Kirk Douglas to fame, climaxed with his being named "The Best Actor of 1956" by the New York film critics.

Art Linkletter says this is the time of year when a young man's fancy turns are liable to set him on ice. . . . If NBC fails to inaugurate a new hour- or 90-minute drama series next season, it will be because CBS has, with a year head start, optioned most of the good story properties. . . . Actress Vera Ellen isn't planning any more dancing on TV because the medium keeps the art in too small an area for the benefit of the cameras. Instead she'll do drama and has just signed with Screen Gems for a Ford Theater appearance. . . . Latest survey by the Census Bureau shows that 76 per cent of American households had TV sets as of August. Northeast is highest with 85 per cent, while the South lags with 65 per cent.

Col. Rich Is Named Third Army Surgeon

Col. Thair C. Rich, chief medical officer of the 18th Airborne Corps and commander of the Fort Bragg post hospital, has been named Third Army surgeon, Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, Army commander has announced.

Col. Rich, a native of Ogden, Utah, will direct Army medical activities in seven southeastern states in his new post.

By JACK GOULD

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—"Ruggles of Red Gap," the saga of the English gentleman's gentleman who finds himself marooned in a small Western town, would appear to lend itself rather well to a musical comedy version. But matters did not work out that way in tonight's presentation over Channel 4. The evening was a most disappointing one.

Alteration of the book to accomodate song and dance and some very odd casting combined to take away the humor and poignancy of the late Harry Leon Wilson's original story. In their place there was substituted only a series of strained situations performed with perilously little inspiration or style.

LIKE A CARICATURE

The chief difficulty was that in the adaptation the part of Ruggles, played by Michael Redgrave, was reduced to virtually a caricature. There was not time to establish a contrast between the valet as he worked on the continent and then as he adjusted to "the land of the savages." The warm sincerity and uproariousness of the man—and the show—simply were not present.

Under the circumstances there was not too much that Redgrave could do with the part but even so he seemed miscast. The delivery of a song hardly shows him to the best advantage and he did not quite seem to have his heart in the tradition of faultless service, which took away from the quiet emotional impact of Ruggles reciting the Declaration of Independence.

TOO MUCH HURRY

The fact that Lord Brinstead, who lost Ruggles in a poker game, was played with very youthful breeziness by Peter Lawford did not help either. Lawford was in too much of a modern hurry to be convincing as the fortunate heir to a valet.

Imogene Coca played the fluttery social climbing housewife and David Wayne had the part of the cattleman who won Ruggles. Jane Powell, who sings professionally, made the most of Clementine, the milliner with whom Ruggles finally settles down in the operation of a restaurant.

Moscow Cheers Irish Fellow Revolutionists

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP) — Moscow radio linked Russians and Irish today as fellow revolutionaries. It extended Soviet blessings to Ireland's "workers and peasants who oppose the colonial oppression of British imperialism."

Mutual of Omaha Pays Georgians $2,091,513 in '56

The Roy F. Morgan Agency in Atlanta has paid to Georgia policyowners during 1956 a total of $2,091,513, which represents claim benefits for reimbursement of hospital expenses or for loss of time benefits due to sickness or accident.

This record high in claim payments sets a new record for service to Georgia people by the largest exclusive health and accident company in the world. In 1955, total claim payments by Mutual of Omaha in Georgia amounted to $1,956,142, and the phenomenal growth of the Roy F. Morgan Agency can be seen through the total of well more than $2,000,000 in 1956. Georgians have received well in excess of $40,000 weekly last year from the Roy F. Morgan Agency in claim benefits.

As always, Mutual of Omaha has pioneered new and broader and more complete health and accident coverage making improvements as business conditions and its experience warrant in the type of coverage that is being offered. The income protection plan offered by Mutual of Omaha provides lifetime benefits not only for accidents but gives benefits for lifetime also in the event of confining sickness.

Perhaps the greatest innovation in the type of hospitalization and health and accident policies being offered by this company, however, is the new "RENEWAL SAFEGUARD" contract which means that the policy is renewable at the option of the policyholder himself and as long as the premiums are paid on these contracts be terminated because of change in the health of the insured. This provision extends completely up to the retirement age of 65.

Mutual of Omaha was one of the pioneers of hospitalization insurance, and the present hospital plan being offered by this company which, incidentally, includes "RENEWAL SAFEGUARD," pays up to 500 days on any one disability for confinement in the hospital. Increased claim allowances are being made for incidentals, such as operating room, anesthesia, routine medicines, surgical dressings, and such expenses that are common with every period of hospital confinement. The Roy F. Morgan Agency offers many different types of income protection plans and also hospitalization plans so that the additional service of tailor-making this coverage to suit each and every individual or each and every family at very low cost is maintained.

In addition to the wide variety of coverages that are available with Mutual of Omaha through the Roy F. Morgan Agency is the fact that perhaps one of the biggest values that any policyowner may obtain is the unexcelled service. Claims are paid promptly and quickly from the Atlanta Office, and it is not necessary that any claim or any other service necessary be obtained from some distant point where a Home Office might be located.

Your premium dollar will give you the most protection, the widest coverage and the most prompt of claim service in Mutual of Omaha. If you are interested in the best that Mutual of Omaha has to offer, you may call the Roy F. Morgan Agency at JAckson 3-5891 and full information will be furnished you without any obligation on your part. If you wish to write for this information, the office address is 1215 Fulton National Bank Building, P. O. Box 1748, Atlanta 1, Georgia.

New Admiral Dual-Temps Now In Showrooms

An improved lifeguard refrigerator door release assuring greater safety for a child who might get shut inside and a completely new door shelf treatment highlight the 1957 Admiral refrigerator lines distributed in Georgia by the Charles S. Martin Distributing Co., 1000 Marietta St., NW.

The new models—now available in dealer showrooms — include Dual-Temps that never require defrosting, as well as automatic defrosting and conventional units. Other features include new fashion front color panels that silhouetted in and out of a chrome frame, freezing cells that freeze ice cubes twice as fast as conventional units, and a new two-color interior of princess pink and snowy white. Most new models are available in a choice of four exterior colors—sea mist green, primrose yellow, shell pink and snowy white.

Pop-out dispenser racks in new "Pantry Doors" make frozen food selection easy and convenient. The "Pantry Door" also contains a 12-quart capacity in-the-door crisper.

Charles S. Martin, president of the Charles S. Martin Distributing Co., said the improved lifeguard door release, an exclusive Admiral feature, will open the door from the inside with only four pounds of pressure—either by pulling, pushing or twisting the release.

The lifeguard door release was developed by Admiral to protect children who accidentally are shut in refrigerators. The device has been made available to other manufacturers by Admiral.

Admiral 1957 Dual-Temp refrigerator-freezers include single, two-door and upside down models. The upside down unit features two outer doors for the first time, eliminating a separate inner door for the freezer section.

Admiral fresh food "Pantry Door" in two-door Dual-Temp models contains a 12-quart capacity crisper, tilt-out egg racks, and butter and cheese keeper. It also has shelf space for one quart bottles and half-gallon milk containers, held in place by chrome shelf guards.

The freezer door in these models contains a pop-out dispenser rack for frozen packages and juice cans, and a bottom rack for frozen soup cans. This feature enables the homemaker to see at a glance what her frozen food needs are and aids in planning meals ahead.

The 4-cubic-foot freezer chest in the 12.5-cubic-foot upside down Dual-Temp has a capacity of 127 pounds of frozen food. It contains a separate shelf formed by the freezing cells themselves to insure faster freezing. The freezer chest also features a roll-out basket to accommodate bulky meat packages.

Freezer compartments in the other Dual-Temp Admirals are completely sealed off and separately insulated from the rest of the refrigerator. They hold up to 89 pounds of food.

The fresh food compartment contains an exclusive Magic Ray lamp that prevents foods from trading flavors. It also features three glide-out shelves.

New 1957 fashion front panels for decorating the upper section of Admiral refrigerators have been made easily interchangeable by means of a chrome frame. To change panels all the homemaker needs to do is slip one panel out and another one in.

Admiral's crisp new "Straight Line" styling is designed to glamorize the kitchen as never before. These spectacular new 1957 Admirals are now on display in dealer showrooms throughout Georgia.

For the name of the dealer nearest you, and for free descriptive literature on the complete line of 1957 Admiral refrigerators, freezers, ranges, air-conditioners, radio and television sets, contact the Charles S. Martin Distributing Co., 1000 Marietta St., NW. The telephone number is TRinity 6-2382.

Mendel and Majestic Co. Welcome Visiting Merchants

Master Loan Service Continues Liberal Policy

Master Loan Service wishes its customers to know that their interest rate and lending policy remain unchanged. Realizing that the public might get the wrong impression from the recent news items about the increase in discount rates, Master Loan wishes to reassure its customers that its interest rates remain unchanged, and that their services are available just as they have been in the past.

One of Atlanta's oldest and established loan service organizations, Master Loan lends money to people on notes, furniture, automobiles, endorsements and other easy collateral. They lend from $30 to $2,500 on terms up to 24 months—and on rates lower than the full amount allowed by law. Borrowers can get extra money, renew their present loan or even increase it at the same low rate and terms.

"Folks from every walk of life visit the Master Loan office for loans to tide them over during emergencies and pressing financial needs," says Leonard Gore, manager. "Many borrow from Master Loan to consolidate all debts, thereby reducing payments."

Located at 61 Forsyth St., across from Old Post Office, Master Loan is open every day in the week. For the convenience of borrowers, they remain open Friday evenings till 8 p.m. Closed Saturdays. Telephone JA. 1-2377.

Famous Brand Lines Beckon Dealers During Market Week

Merchants are gathering at H. Mendel & Company, Inc. and the Majestic Company this week. Today is the beginning of their Market Week, and to hundreds of merchants and buyers it means just one thing: Specials!

Outstanding Market Week promotions are being offered for this week only at both firms. At H. Mendel & Company, 185 Pryor St., S.W., some of the biggest values in their 77-year history are being presented — specials in nationally advertised brands of piece goods, home furnishings, hosiery, underwear, work clothes, knit goods, sportswear and notions. The Majestic Corp., 260 Central Ave., S.W. is featuring values in infants', children's and ladies' wear — all nationally famous lines.

If you are a merchant or buyer, it will pay and repay you to visit these firms during this Market Week which ends February 8. At both firms you may register for prizes totaling $2,500 in U. S. Savings Bonds, the first prize being a $1,000 bond. No purchase is necessary, of course, and you need not be present to win.

In line with their policy of supplying retail merchants with the top brands, The Majestic Corporation is pleased to announce their appointment as exclusive distributor of the nationally advertised "Princess Peggy" line of cotton dresses. This well known brand is now available for prompt delivery.

Other well known brands include such names as Land 'N Sea, blouses and sportswear; Young Life Fashions and Fairy Tale girls' dresses; Blue Bell sportswear; Fruit of the Loom dusters and maternities; Hanes, E-Z and Curity infants' wear; Mighty Midget kiddie handbags; Alphabit's kiddie wear; Jim Boy-Judy Girl; Chick 'N Chuck juvenile sportswear; Binkies and Bambi baby shoes; Chatham and Storktex crib blankets; Curity, Chix, and Lullaby diapers etc., plus many other equally well known lines in the women's, children's and infants' wear categories.

H. Mendel & Company also announces its appointment by Burlington fabrics as exclusive Southeastern distributor of Galey & Lord cottons. This addition to its already famous list of famous brands places H. Mendel & Company in position to supply Department, Dry Goods and Fabric stores with the strongest array of nationally advertised piece goods brands available to merchants.

Another famous Burlington product, Bur-Mill, men's socks are also being distributed by H. Mendel on an exclusive basis to men's wear departments, and this nationally advertised line together with Kent, Bachelors' Friend, Springfoot, Davis 4-D presents some of the strongest name brands available in this section.

Steel Building Products, Inc., offers helpful planning service, and works closely with builders, architects and engineers. For details and quotations, call JA. 5-1150, or write Steel Building Products, Inc., 1010 Georgia Savings Bank Building, Atlanta. No obligation, of course.

British railways are equipped with nozzles which force compressed air at a pressure of 70 pounds per square inch to clear tracks of snowdrifts.

SMART — Above, "Princess Peggy" Style No. 2010 of embossed Cris-Kay cotton with large pockets that dash around the hip line almost to the back . . . very swish . . . and offered to dealers in sizes 12-20 and 14½ to 24½ by Majestic Corp.

CHIC — Another in the Princess Peggy numbers featured by Mendel and Majestic for merchants this week. It's the "Solartog," No. 5520. It's a two-piece cotton playsuit available in sizes 10-18 and 38-44. Below, the Solartog becomes another outfit. Of everglaze minicare, it is crease-resistant, calling for little or no ironing. The Princess Peggy line, newest to join the famous names at Majestic, is expected to achieve quick popularity this season. Merchants can see it and many more at the Majestic Corp., 260 Central Ave., SW.

Sturdy 'Steelcraft' Buildings Have Varied Uses in Industry

Sturdy "Steelcraft" steel buildings are being adapted for different uses every day in this area, where they are sold by Steel Building Products, Inc., 1010 Georgia Savings Bank Bldg.

Built by the Steelcraft Manufacturing Co., of Rossmoyne, Ohio (greater Cincinnati), these buildings are standardized; yet, they are extremely flexible to meet the specific requirements of widely divergent industrial uses.

As pointed out by officials of Steel Building Products, Inc., Steelcrafts buildings are permanent structures, not to be confused with temporary "prefabs." They are designed to meet local building codes, climatic and load conditions to which they will be subjected.

Steel Building Products, Inc., offers Steelcraft buildings for every purpose. For instance, the "truss type" buildings of 20 and 32 feet are furnished completely "knocked down" for convenience in handling and shipping. This type of building is adaptable for stores, offices, garages, equipment housing and warehousing and is especially recommended for its low cost and easy portability.

Steelcraft's "Panel Type" buildings are factory assembled in sections. Sidewall panels have sash in place, doors hung, can be factory insulated if required, and provide unlimited adaptation to the requirements of the purchaser.

An important feature liked by users is the fact that Steelcraft buildings, being fire resistant, carry low fire insurance rates. There is no limit to the selection of collateral materials, such as masonry side walls, built-up roofing, corrugated asbestos, aluminum, or galvanized rib panel covering.

Steelcraft's rigid frame buildings are available up to 80-foot clear spans and in multiple widths and lengths. They can be used in combination with other types of buildings. This construction has particular advantages when balconies are to be used.

22 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

Bob Gorrell Appointed To Gordy Sales Staff

Robert (Bob) Gorrell, with many years of successful experience in both the manufacturing and sales ends of the tire industry, has been appointed to the sales staff at Gordy Tire Co., according to an announcement by George Boyd, general manager.

Mr. Gorrell, a native of McConnelsville, Ohio, majored in Rubber Manufacturing at Akron University. After leaving school, he went to work with one of the country's largest tire manufacturers—and has spent over 22 years in various phases of the industry, during which time he became an expert at solving tire problems relating to construction and tread design.

As Mr. Boyd pointed out, Mr. Gorrell's past experience includes both tire building at the factory level and sales work in the field. "He has the background and qualifications to be of genuine assistance to any time customer," Mr. Boyd said, "especially those interested in obtaining marimum results from truck and off-the-highway tires."

Mr. Gorrell lives with his wife, Patricia, and one child, Cynthia, on the Chamblee-Tucker Road in Chamblee. He is active in the Doraville Presbyterian Church.
